AGREEMENTS AND OTHER BILATERAL COMMITMENTS LINKING THE COMMUNITIES WITH NON-MEMBER COUNTRIES

(As at 30 June 1982)

FOREWORD

This new document produced by the Treaties Office of the Directorate-General for External Relations contains up-to-date basic data concerning the treaties and other legal commitments entered into by the European Communities with non-member countries or groups of countries. The conception of the document and the agreements listed are the same as for document I/191/81/F.

However, thanks to the future developments clause and its extension to non-European countries, assisted by a pragmatic approach to relations between countries and trust in negotiated solutions, more and more activities outside the commercial and economic spheres are gradually giving rise to contractual legal relations. This has been the case as regards both environment and research, and it is worth drawing attention in this context to cooperation in the COST framework, under which European non-member countries and the Communities can cooperate in specific scientific or technological projects of common interest. It has also been the case with arrangements or exchanges of letters which, subject to periodic renewal, approximate to agreements, such as the iron and steel arrangements or those relating to certain agri-foodstuffs products.

Hence the next version of the catalogue of bilateral agreements will have to include many more acts, while retaining its character as a public information document designed for rapid consultation.

The information contained in this document provides a bird's-eye view of the agreements and sheds light on trends as regards the selection made by the Communities from among the different types of possible relations. Details have also been included of the method of administration so as to give some idea of an agreement's importance, as this feature determines its place within an established hierarchy.

For departments wishing to make more searching inquiries, it may be pointed out that the Treaties Office (Berlaymont 4/3, telephone: 56162 and 54848) possesses a complete collection of acts. Individual items can be checked via the integrated information systems (SII - Systèmes d'Information Intégrées), which handle computerized data in collaboration with the Treaties Office. Furthermore, the external relations sector of CELEX, the inter-institutional computerized documentation system for Community law, is at present being reviewed in order to improve public access to non-confidential data.

The attention of Commission departments involved in preparing, implementing or administering agreements, is again drawn to the need to pass on to the Treaties Office any information that might help the unit to function as effectively as possible.
