ANNEX II: CONVENTIONS & SURVEILLANCE MECHANISMS

The assessment of whether a country has ratified and effectively implemented conventions in accordance with Article 8 of Regulation 732/2008 is based on the information and findings of the monitoring mechanisms established under the auspices of the relevant international organisations such as the UN, ILO and other agencies as well as on the findings of and information from monitoring mechanisms established under the conventions themselves.

1. UN HUMAN RIGHTS CONVENTIONS

As far as Human Rights Conventions are concerned, State parties are obliged to report regularly to the Committees responsible for the supervision of the Conventions. Each of the conventions establishes a specialized body composed of independent experts responsible for monitoring the implementation of the conventions. Detailed information can be found on the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (UNHCHR) website (www.ohchr.org). As States Parties are obliged to report only periodically to the Committees established under each Convention, in many cases no Committee reports are available for the beneficiary countries for the period in question. Moreover, it should be borne in mind that the reports of Committees established under the conventions are by their nature critical and focused on shortcomings with the aim of ensuring full implementation of the conventions.

- The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights² provides for a broad range of civil and political rights. The Covenant includes the right to life; the right to freedom from torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment and punishment, the right to liberty security of the person, the right of detained persons to humane treatment, the right to and freedom of movement; the right to a fair trial; the right to freedom of thought, conscience, and religion; the right to freedom of opinion and expression and the right to freedom of assembly and association. The Covenant also provides that all peoples have the right to self-determination and that minorities have the right to enjoy their own culture, practise their own religion and use their own language. The Convention is supplemented by two Optional Protocols providing for: (1) the possibility of individual complaints with regard to alleged violations of the Covenant by State parties; (2) the abolition of the death penalty in the territory under the jurisdiction of the State party.

The Human Rights Committee³ monitors the implementation of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights in the territory of State parties. Under Article 40 of the Covenant, States parties must submit reports every five years on the measures they have adopted to give effect to the rights recognized in the Covenant and on the progress made in the enjoyment of those rights. The reports are examined by the Committee, which then adopts concluding observations summarizing its main concerns and making suggestions and recommendations to the State party. Article 41 of the Covenant provides for the Committee to consider inter-state complaints. Furthermore, the Committee may also examine individual complaints with regard to alleged violations of the Covenant by State parties to the First Optional Protocol to the Covenant.

- The International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights⁴ provides for a range of economic, social, and cultural rights such as the right to just and favourable conditions of work, the right to form trade unions and the right to strike, the right to social security, the right to an adequate standard of living, the right to education and the right to take part in cultural life. The Covenant also provides that all peoples have the right to self determination. The Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights \(CESCR\)⁵ monitors the implementation of the Covenant. Under articles 16 and 17 of the Covenant, States party are required to submit reports to the Committee every five years. The reports are examined by the Committee, which then adopts concluding observations summarizing its main concerns and making suggestions and recommendations to the State party.

- The International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination⁶ prohibits racial discrimination in all its forms. The Convention requires State parties not to engage in acts of racial discrimination, to amend any laws which create racial discrimination and to bring an end to racial discrimination by all persons or groups. The Convention requires State parties to declare the dissemination of ideas based on racial superiority or incitement to racial hatred to be criminal offences and to prohibit organisations which promote racial discrimination. The Convention requires States to eliminate racial discrimination in the enjoyment of a range of civil and political and economic, social and cultural rights.

The Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination \(CERD\)⁷ is the body of independent experts that monitors implementation of the convention. All State parties are obliged to submit regular reports to the Committee on how the rights are being implemented. States must report initially one year after acceding to the Convention and then every two years and whenever the Committee so requests. The reports are examined by the Committee, which then adopts concluding observations summarizing its main concerns and making suggestions and recommendations to the State party.

- The Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women⁸ requires State parties to eliminate discrimination against women. The Convention requires State parties to take measures to eliminate discrimination against women in political and public life, and in the fields of education, employment, health care, and other areas of economic and social life. The Convention requires State parties to take measures to eliminate discrimination against women in rural areas, to accord women equality before the law and to eliminate discrimination against women concerning acquisition of nationality, and in matters concerning marriage and family relations. The Convention is supplemented by an Optional Protocol recognizing the competence of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women \(CEDAW\)^{9,10} - the body that monitors State parties' compliance with the Convention - to receive and consider complaints from individuals or groups within its jurisdiction, as well as to initiate inquiries into situations of grave or systematic violations of women's rights.

The Convention obliges State parties to submit to the Secretary-General a report on the legislative, judicial, administrative or other measures that they have adopted to implement the Convention within a year after its entry into force and then at least every four years thereafter or whenever the CEDAW so requests. These reports, which may indicate factors and difficulties in implementation, are forwarded to the CEDAW for its consideration. The reports are examined by the Committee, which then adopts concluding observations summarizing its main concerns and making suggestions and recommendations to the State party.

By ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Covenant, a State recognizes the competence of CEDAW to receive and consider complaints from individuals or groups within its jurisdiction, as well as to initiate inquiries into situations of grave or systematic violations of women's rights.

- The Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment¹¹ bans torture under all circumstances. The Convention requires State parties to take effective measures to prevent torture, requires States to ensure that acts of torture are criminal offences, and forbids States from expelling persons to States where they would be in danger of being tortured. The Convention also requires State parties to prevent acts of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment not amounting to torture. The Optional Protocol to the Convention creates the UN Subcommittee on Prevention and allows in-country inspections of places of detention to be undertaken in collaboration with national institutions.

The Committee Against Torture \(CAT\)¹² monitors the implementation of the Convention. All State parties are obliged to submit regular reports to the Committee, initially one year after acceding to the Convention and then every four years. The reports are examined by the Committee, which then adopts concluding observations summarizing its main concerns and making suggestions and recommendations to the State party.

- The Convention on the Rights of the Child¹³ requires State parties to ensure that in all actions concerning children undertaken by state authorities, the best interests of the child shall be a primary consideration. The Convention creates a range of rights for children relating to registration of birth, respect for identity, protection against separation from parents, family reunification, freedom of thought and expression, freedom of association, access to information, protection from physical or mental violence, adoption, health care, mental or physical disability, social security, adequate living standards, education and protection from exploitation. The Convention is supplemented by two Optional Protocols concerning the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, and on the involvement of children in armed conflict.

The Committee on the Rights of the Child \(CRC\)¹⁴ monitors the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and its Optional Protocols by State parties. All State parties are obliged to submit regular reports to the Committee on how the rights are being implemented. States must report initially two years after acceding to the Convention and then every five years. The Committee examines each report and addresses its concerns and recommendations to the State party in the form of “concluding observations”.

2. GENOCIDE CONVENTION AND APARTHEID CONVENTION

- The Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide¹⁵ bans acts committed with the intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnic, racial or religious group. It declares genocide a crime under international law whether committed during war or peacetime, and binds all State parties to take measures to prevent and punish any acts of genocide committed within their jurisdiction. The Convention does not establish a Committee to monitor its implementation.

- The International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid¹⁶ declares apartheid a crime against humanity and that inhuman acts resulting from the policies and practices of apartheid are crimes violating the principles of international law, and constituting a serious threat to international peace and security. For the purpose of the Convention, the term "apartheid" shall apply to the inhuman acts committed for the purpose of establishing and maintaining domination by one racial group of persons over any other racial group of persons and systematically oppressing them.

The body in charge of monitoring the implementation of the Convention is envisaged in Article 9 of the convention¹⁷.

3. ILO CORE LABOUR STANDARDS

The core labour standards comprise eight conventions that the ILO deems "key", covering subjects that are considered as fundamental principles and rights at work: freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining; the elimination of all forms of forced or compulsory labour; the effective abolition of child labour; and the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation.

The fundamental Conventions are:

- Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organise Convention, 1948 \(No. 87\)¹⁸

- Right to Organise and Collective Bargaining Convention, 1949 \(No. 98\)¹⁹

- Minimum Age Convention, 1973 (No. 138)²²

- Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182)²³

- Equal Remuneration Convention, 1951 (No. 100)²⁴

- Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Convention, 1958 (No. 111)²⁵

States that have ratified ILO Conventions are under obligation to report regularly on the steps taken in law and practice for the application of these Conventions.²⁶ For the eight fundamental conventions reports are normally due every two years. Reports are subsequently reviewed by the Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations (CEACR). The CEACR is an impartial body of 20 legal experts from all regions of the world that meets during November/December each year and draws up a report. The annual CEACR reports are the main source relating to Members' compliance with ILO conventions. They are published on the ILO website and all its observations on the implementation of the conventions can be found on the ILO's ILOLEX database²⁷.

The Report of the CEACR has two main parts concerning Member States' obligations. The General Report describes the progress of the work of the CEACR and the extent to which Member States have fulfilled their reporting obligations. The second part of the CEACR's report publishes observations addressed to individual countries. These observations address fundamental questions raised by the application of a Convention by a member State.

The CEACR reports does not only reflect information on the legislation and the practice based on the reports submitted by governments but also comments made by employers and workers organisations, and it takes account of proceedings and findings of other ILO supervisory bodies such as the Committee on the Application of Standards of the International Labour Conference (CAS), the Governing Body's Committee on the Freedom of Association (CFA) and the findings of the special procedures such in case of a complaint followed by the establishment of a Commission of Inquiry. The CFA is a tripartite Committee of the Governing Body which is competent to deal with complaints of workers' and employers' organizations in relation to freedom of association and collective bargaining, even in relation to countries that have not ratified the corresponding conventions No 87 and 98.

The report of the CEACR, which is usually published in spring each year feeds into the work of the CAS. The CAS' mandate is, inter alia, to consider measures taken to give effect to ratified Conventions. It is required to present a report of its work to the Conference. The CAS discusses the General Report prepared by the CEACR and examines cases of serious failure to fulfil reporting and other standard-related obligations. Its main task is the examination of a number of individual cases (currently approximately 25) which are selected among the countries that have been the object of an observation in the CEACR report. Government members of the countries involved are invited for an exchange on these observations. The Conference Committee adopts conclusions on the individual cases.

The list of individual cases identified in all regions of the world and selected through negotiations between the employers and workers representatives must not be considered per se as a blacklist, but constitute mostly, in practice, cases of serious application problems. The discussions and conclusions on the situations examined by the CAS are published in its report which is adopted by the International Labour Conference. It is important to note that ILO supervision concentrates on legal implementation and also on concrete application problems. At the same time, it also highlights cases of progress. Further to its decision in 2007, the CEACR may also highlight cases of good practice. Since 2005, more attention has also been given to the complementarity between the supervisory system and technical assistance, and therefore, for some cases, the need for technical assistance is being highlighted by the CAS and the CEACR.

The reports of the CEACR and the CAS assess and indicate also the degree of willingness of the member States to address problems in complying with ratified labour standards and to cooperate with the ILO.

4. ENVIRONMENT AND GOVERNANCE PRINCIPLES CONVENTIONS

It should be noted from the outset that some international environmental agreements establish compliance/implementation committees to monitor implementation of obligations and compliance with agreements by the Parties. When using reports issued by the compliance/implementation committee under international environmental conventions as an indicator of Party's compliance with international obligations it is important to note a few features characteristic for compliance mechanisms in such agreements. The purpose of compliance mechanisms is to examine individual cases of non-compliance and facilitate compliance with the agreement. Compliance committees do not normally issue general reports on state of compliance with a particular convention by all Parties. Therefore in cases where compliance proceedings were never initiated against a certain Party – either by a submission from another Party to the convention or on Committee's own initiative or triggered by self-submission, no report of the compliance committee exist with regard to that Party.

- The Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer²⁸ recognizes the need (following the discovery of the Antarctic ozone hole in late 1985) for stronger measures to reduce the production and consumption of ozone depleting substances, focusing at the beginning on Chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs), halons, and carbon tetrachloride. The Protocol was designed so that the phase out schedules could be revised by Decisions of the Parties on the basis of periodic scientific and technological assessments. Subsequent amendments to the Protocol extended the control measures to other ozone depleting substances, such as hydrochlorofluorocarbons (HCFCs).

As regards the implementation of the control measures in the Montreal protocol, the two key elements are the data reporting and the non-compliance procedure. According to article 7 of the Protocol, parties report every year to the Ozone Secretariat in Nairobi, Kenya on production, import and export of ozone-depleting substances referred to in the Protocol annexes. In addition, the monitoring of compliance is done by the Implementation Committee²⁹ on the basis of the data provided and extensive reports made on countries in non-compliance. This is an effective instrument for bringing countries into line. The committee itself only makes recommendations, all of which are referred to the Meeting of the Parties to the Montreal Protocol (MOP) for adoption as decisions. The ‘indicative list’ of measures that might be taken by a meeting of the parties in respect of non-compliance with the Protocol includes issuing formal cautions and the suspension for specific rights and privileges under the protocol, such as those dealing with finance and trade. The financing arm of the Montreal Protocol -the Multilateral Fund - can assist helping the countries into compliance.

- The goal of the Basel Convention on the Control of Transboundary Movements of Hazardous Wastes and Their Disposal³⁰ is “environmentally sound management” (ESM) of waste, that is, to protect human health and the environment by minimizing the generation and Transboundary movement of hazardous waste, and by ensuring the availability of adequate disposal facilities that should be located, whenever possible, close to the source of generation. This involves strong controls, and to some extent prohibitions, of the transboundary shipment of hazardous and certain other wastes and guidance on their environmentally sound management, including storage, treatment, reuse, recycling, recovery and final disposal.

Compliance with obligations from the Basel Convention is controlled through a Mechanism for Promoting Implementation and Compliance³¹, whose objective is to assist Parties to comply with their obligations under the Convention and to facilitate, promote, monitor and aim to secure the implementation of and compliance with the obligations under the Convention. The Compliance Committee³² is in charge of this mechanism.

- The Stockholm Convention on Persistent Organic Pollutants³³ is a global treaty to protect human health and the environment from persistent organic pollutants (POPs). POPs are hazardous chemicals (PCBs, dioxins, furans & highly dangerous pesticides) that remain intact in the environment for long periods, become widely distributed geographically, accumulate in the fatty tissue of living organisms and are toxic to humans and wildlife. POPs circulate globally and cause damage wherever they travel.

Regarding implementation, a non-compliance mechanism under the Stockholm Convention is yet to be established. As no Compliance Committee exists, compliance is assessed through the requirement for the Parties to submit a National Implementation Plan under Article 7 and the submission of a National Report under Article 15.

Article 15 of the Convention requires each Party to the Convention to report to the Conference of the Parties on the measures it has taken to implement the provisions of the Convention and on the effectiveness of such measures in meeting the objectives of the Convention. The Conference of the Parties established the periodicity of this reporting to be every four years and adopted a format for reporting. Details on the fulfilment of the reporting obligations of relevant countries can be found below in Annex IV. The second reporting cycle has just been initiated. The reports received from the Parties will be published once the submissions are completed. According to decision SC-4/30, the deadline for report submissions is 31 October 2010.

The Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species³⁴ (CITES or Washington Convention) is one of the most important conservation agreements in existence and regularly updates the list of species (which includes both animals and plants) subject to import regulations or restrictions.

CITES regularly and equitably monitors legislative implementation, practical implementation and enforcement records of Parties. In practice, it has a powerful compliance tool in that the Standing Committee can recommend trade sanctions³⁵. The Secretariat of CITES³⁶ is a repository of information on the implementation of the Convention and receives information and reports that it has to communicate to the Parties. This is done through the Notifications to the Parties³⁷. Parties are required to submit annual reports on trade and biennial reports about the implementation of the Convention. The State Parties are collectively referred to as the Conference of the Parties. Every three years the Conference meets to review the list of species and the implementation of the Convention.

- The Convention on Biological Diversity³⁸ (CBD) seeks a comprehensive approach to sustainable development through three main goals: the conservation of biological diversity, the sustainable use of its components and a fair sharing of the benefits arising from the use of genetic resources.

The CBD has two direct legal requirements for developing countries: to establish National Biodiversity Strategy and Action Plan (NBSAP) which outline national actions for implementing the CBD and to report (reports available on the CBD website³⁹) every four years on implementation progress. The objective of national reporting, as specified in Article 26 of the Convention, is to provide information on measures taken for the implementation of the Convention and the effectiveness of these measures. The process of reporting will also assist the individual country to monitor the status of implementation of the commitments it

³⁴ <http://www.cites.org/eng/disc/text.shtml#texttop>

³⁵ The review mechanisms include in particular:

1. A requirement to submit annual reports setting out the numbers of permits and certificates issued for trading;
2. A requirement to submit bi-annual reports on legislative measures and enforcement;
3. A review of Parties' legislation by the Secretariat followed by recommendations to the Standing Committee as appropriate;
4. The facility of complaints by other Parties to the Secretariat/ Standing Committee;
5. Whereby Parties to the Convention are recommended not to accept imports of CITES species from the country in question;
6. The scope to recommend trade suspensions arising from these provisions.

has taken on as a Contracting Party. It can assist the country to identify those commitments that are being successfully met, those that have not been implemented, and constraints to implementation.

- The Conference of Parties of the CBD adopted the Cartagena Protocol on Biosafety⁴⁰ in January 2000 in Montreal, which entered into force in September 2003. This Protocol governs the transboundary movement of Genetically Modified Organisms (GMOs) and authorises states to prevent the import of GMOs according to the precautionary principle.

The Conference of the Parties to the Convention on Biological Diversity serving as the meeting of the Parties to the Protocol (COP-MOP⁴¹) is the governing body of the Cartagena Protocol on Biosafety. Its primary role is to keep under regular review the implementation of the Protocol and to make decisions necessary to promote its effective implementation. The Parties adopted in February 2004 a compliance procedure which potentially provides room for the adoption of any measure (including trade-related measures if needed to achieve the objectives of the Protocol) vis-à-vis non-compliant Parties.

- The Kyoto Protocol to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change⁴² is the only international framework to combat global warming.

On the basis of Article 18 of the KP, the Conference of the Parties adopted a decision on the *compliance regime*⁴³ which makes up the ‘teeth’ of the KP, facilitating promoting and enforcing adherence to the KP’s commitments. The surveillance mechanism of the Kyoto Protocol is described on the UN Framework Convention on climate change website⁴⁴ The Protocol’s monitoring procedures are based on existing reporting and in-depth review procedures under the Convention, building on experience gained in the climate change process over the past decade. They also involve additional accounting procedures that are needed to track transactions in various units representing greenhouse gas emission reductions. The reports are all available on the website.

The three major international drug control conventions are mutually supportive and complementary. Their goal is to codify internationally applicable control measures to ensure the availability of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances for medical and scientific purposes, and to prevent their diversion into illicit channels. They also include provisions on illicit trafficking and drug abuse.

- The UN Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs⁴⁵ aims to combat drug abuse by coordinated international action. First, it seeks to limit the possession, use, and trade in, distribution, import, export, manufacture and production of drugs exclusively to medical and scientific purposes. Second, it combats drug trafficking through international cooperation to deter and discourage drug traffickers.

⁴³ The compliance regime consists of a Compliance Committee made up of 2 branches: a Facilitative Branch which provides advice and assistance to parties to promote compliance, whereas the Enforcement Branch has the power to determine consequences for Parties not meeting their commitments.

- The UN Convention on Psychotropic Substances⁴⁶ establishes an international control system for psychotropic substances. It responded to the diversification and expansion of the spectrum of drugs of abuse and introduced controls over a number of synthetic drugs according to their abuse potential on the one hand and their therapeutic value on the other.

- The UN Convention against the Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances⁴⁷ provides comprehensive measures against drug trafficking, including provisions against money laundering and the diversion of precursor chemicals; and international cooperation through, for example, extradition of drug traffickers, controlled deliveries and transfer of proceedings.

The International Narcotics Control Board (INCB⁴⁸) monitors compliance with the provisions of the international drug control treaties. The INCB also recommends actions and suggests adjustments to both international and national control regimes. In appropriate cases, the Board may recommend to the competent United Nations organs, to specialized agencies and Governments that technical and/or financial assistance be provided in support of the Governments' efforts to comply with their treaty obligations. Its last report⁴⁹ is that corresponding to the year 2009.

- The UN Convention against Corruption⁵⁰ has four main requirements namely prevention, criminalisation of a wide range of acts of corruption (not only the basic forms of corruption such as bribery and the embezzlement of public funds, but also trading in influence and the concealment and 'laundering' of the proceeds of corruption), international cooperation in every aspect of the fight against corruption and asset recovery.

In accordance with its article 68 (1)⁵¹, the United Nations Convention against Corruption entered into force on 14 December 2005. When it entered into force, a Conference of the State Parties was established to review implementation and facilitate activities required by the Convention. Its reports on implementation can be found on the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime website.⁵²

ANNEX IV: RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE MONITORING BODIES TO THE GSP+ BENEFICIARIES

The report covers the period from April 2008 till October 2010.

In the case of ILO Conventions, the Report on the Compliance Committee regarding a given party only exists in cases where a compliance procedure was started against the party. Therefore, if there is no information provided in the table it means that there is no report of the Compliance Committee mentioning a given country.

In the case of UN Conventions, when no information of a particular convention appears in the table it means that there are no reports available for that particular country and for the monitoring period under consideration.

June 2010 3. http://www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---ed_norm/---relconf/documents/meetingdocument/wcms_123424.pdf 	The Committee requests the Government to communicate in its next report any amendments taken or contemplated to section 281 of the Labour Code and section 233 of the Criminal Code so as to allow the exercise of the right to strike in railways and air transport sectors, acknowledging that a minimum service created with the participation of the employers and the trade unions concerned could be established. The Committee requests the Government to transmit with its next report a copy of the repealing instrument with regard to Section 6(1) of the Act on Trade Unions and its provision “trade unions are prohibited from engaging in political activity, associating with political parties or carrying out joint activities, providing and receiving assistance or donations to/from political parties”. The Government indicates in its report that this provision has been repealed and that limitations on the activities of trade unions were removed. The Committee previously requested the Government to take the necessary measures in order to ensure that multinational enterprises operating on its territory respect freedom of association norms and principles. The Committee notes that the Government indicates that additions to article 80 of the Labour Code of the Republic of Azerbaijan adopted by the Milli Mejlis (Parliament) on 10 October 2006, significantly strengthened the status of the trade unions at the enterprises. The Committee requests the Government to provide a copy, with its next report, of the additions to article 80 of the Labour Code.

98 - Application of the Principles of the Right to Organise and to Bargain Collectively	1. CEACR 2. June 2010 3. http://www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---ed_norm/---relconf/documents/meetingdocument/wcms_123424.pdf	The Committee, recalling that it was the responsibility of the Government to ensure the application of the Convention, requested the Government to take the necessary measures in order to ensure that multinational enterprises operating on its territory respect freedom of association norms and principles and to inform it of the measures taken in this respect. It further requested the Government to provide its observations on the ITUC's previous allegation of cases of anti-union discrimination and interference that took place in multinational enterprises. The Committee also recalled that, according to Article 4 of the Convention, free and voluntary bargaining with a view to the regulation of terms and conditions of employment should be conducted between workers' organizations and an employer or employers' organization and therefore requested the Government to take measures to amend its legislation so as to bring it into conformity with the Convention. The Committee notes the Government's indication that steps are being taken to set up national and local collaborative committees comprising representatives of unions, employers' associations, relevant executive bodies and public associations representing the interests of those especially in need of social protection, with a view to promoting employment.

100 - Equal Remuneration of Men and Women Workers for Work of Equal Value	1. CEACR 2. June 2009 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportsubmittedtotheConference/lang--en/docName--WCMS_103484/index.htm	The Committee recalls its previous comments concerning the 1999 Labour Code, drawing the Government's attention to the fact that provisions of the Code do not fully reflect the principle of equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value. The Committee also notes that the section 9(1) of the Act on Ensuring Gender Equality fails to reflect fully the principle of the Convention. The Committee wishes to stress once again that legislation setting out the principle of equal remuneration for work of equal value is important in order to ensure the full application of the Convention. The Committee asks the Government to indicate the measures taken or envisaged to bring the legislation into full conformity with the Convention and to provide detailed information on the implementation and enforcement of section 9 of the Act on Ensuring Gender Equality, including relevant judicial and administrative decisions.

111 - Discrimination in Respect of Employment and Occupation	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. CEACR 2. June 2009 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportsubmittedtotheConference/lang--en/docName--WCMS_103484/index.htm 	The Committee notes with interest the adoption and entry into force of the Act on Ensuring Gender Equality of 10 October 2006 which aims at ensuring gender equality by eliminating all forms of discrimination based on sex and creating equal opportunities for men and women in all spheres of social life, including employment. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on the implementation of the Act on Ensuring Gender Equality, in particular information on measures taken to make the new provisions widely known. It requests also the Government to provide information on any complaints and cases regarding discrimination in employment and occupation dealt with by the courts, the labour inspection service or other competent bodies, including information on the number, nature and outcomes of any such proceedings. The Committee notes that, in addition to putting in place gender equality legislation, the Government included measures to promote gender equality in its employment strategy (2006–15). According to the report, the strategy emphasizes assistance to women in the creation of small enterprises and the introduction of flexible forms of employment with a view to creating new jobs for women. The Government also states that vocational training and involvement of women in public works was a priority of the state employment service. The Committee further notes that the Decent Work Country Programme (DWCP) (2006–09) envisages the ratification of the Workers with Family Responsibilities Convention, 1981 (No. 156), and the elaboration of measures to promote reconciliation of work and family, and the creation of family-friendly workplaces. Further, under the DWCP, compliance of the national legislation with international labour standards will be examined. The Committee requests the Government to provide detailed information on the specific measures taken under the employment strategy to ensure women’s equal access to the labour market, including self-employment, and to provide detailed statistical information on the participation of men and women in the different sectors, industries and occupations. It also requests the Government to indicate the progress made in the examination of the national legislation with a view to ensuring compliance with international labour standards on gender equality.

138 - Minimum Age for Admission to Employment	1. CEACR 2. June 2009 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportsubmittedtotheConference/lang--en/docName--WCMS_103484/index.htm	The Committee notes with regret that the Government's report does not contain reply to previous comments. The Committee therefore repeats its previous observations: With regard to the minimum age for admission to employment or work, the Committee recalls that the minimum age of 16 years was specified under the Convention as regards Azerbaijan. It noted with regret that the new Labour Code, allows a person who has reached the age of 15 to be part of an employment contract; and the Individual Contracts of Employment Agreement Act sets the minimum age for concluding an employment contract at 14 years. The Committee once again points out that the Convention allows and encourages the raising of the minimum age but does not permit lowering of the minimum age once specified. Therefore, the Committee once again asks the Government to indicate the measures taken or envisaged to ensure that access to employment of children of 14 and 15 years of age may be allowed exceptionally, only for work that meets the criteria set out in Article 7 of the Convention. With regard to the provisions of the new Labour Code, the Committee recalls that Convention No. 138 requires the fixing of a minimum age for all types of work or employment and not only for work under an employment contract. The Committee again asks the Government to supply information on the measures taken or envisaged to ensure the application of the Convention to all types of work outside an employment relationship, such as self-employment. The Committee notes the Government's indication that a list of arduous and hazardous industries or occupations where the employment of persons under 18 years of age is prohibited was approved by Decision No. 58 of the Cabinet of Ministers of the Republic of Azerbaijan on 24 March 2000. The Committee once again requests the Government to provide a copy of the text. The Committee once again requests the Government to supply further information on the types of light work that are permitted for persons who have attained 14 years of age. The Committee requests the Government to indicate which provisions in its national legislation regulate sanctions for violations of the labour law and to supply a copy of the same. The Committee once again asks the Government to supply data to give a general appreciation of the manner in which the Convention is applied, for instance, statistical data on the employment of children and young persons, extracts from the report inspection services, and information on the

INCB 2. 24 February 2010 3. http://www.incb.org/incb/en/annual-report-2009.html	Drug abuse remains a serious concern in the Southern Caucasus. In Azerbaijan, the drugs of choice are opioids and cannabis, followed by non-prescribed sedatives and tranquilizers. In 2008, among drug users aged 15-64 years, 70 per cent abused opioids, 20 per cent abused cannabis and 10 per cent abused benzodiazepines; among adolescents, 10 per cent abused opioids, 30 per cent abused cannabis and 60 per cent abused benzodiazepines. At the end of 2008, 514 persons who abused drugs by injection were infected with hepatitis or HIV, while 26 of the 48 drug related deaths in the country were caused by the abuse of benzodiazepines. The Board urges the Government of Azerbaijan to closely monitor that worrying situation and increase the resources allocated for the prevention and treatment of drug abuse, especially among youth.

Article 52: Azerbaijan reported full implementation of measures to prevent and detect transfers of proceeds of crime, in accordance with article 52 of the Convention and as required cited applicable legislation, but did not fulfil the optional reporting item of providing examples of successful implementation of the article under review... Azerbaijan reported that special supervision by the banks' internal control systems should be applied to the opening of corresponding accounts of non-resident banks and to transactions involving such accounts. However, Azerbaijan did not clarify how the establishment of banks with no physical presence in Azerbaijan was prevented. Article 53: Concerning measures to permit their courts or competent authorities to recognize another State party's claim of legitimate ownership of property proceeds of crime, as prescribed by paragraph (c), Azerbaijan reported partial implementation of such measures. Article 54: Reporting on measures to permit its competent authorities to give effect to orders of confiscation issued by courts of another State party, as prescribed by paragraph 1 (a), Azerbaijan reported that it had not taken such measures. Concerning the confiscation of property of foreign origin (para. 1 (b)), Azerbaijan stated that it had not implemented the provision. Azerbaijan indicated that it had not taken measures to permit the confiscation of property acquired through corruption without a criminal conviction (non-mandatory provision, para. 1 (c)) Article 55: Azerbaijan stated that its legislation was in full compliance with the provision under review, but did not substantiate its answers by providing examples of the successful use or implementation of the provision (an optional reporting item). With regard to the identification, tracing, freezing or seizure of proceeds of crime, as required by paragraph 2, Azerbaijan indicated partial compliance. Concerning the contents of requests for orders of confiscation, as prescribed by paragraph 3, Azerbaijan assessed its legislation as being in full compliance but did not provide examples of successful implementation (an optional reporting item).

		Article 57: With regard to the disposal of confiscated property, as prescribed by paragraph 1, Azerbaijan indicated partial compliance with the requirements of the same provision. Reporting on measures for the return of confiscated property upon request by another State party, as prescribed by paragraph 2 Azerbaijan indicated partial implementation. Concerning the return of property confiscated pursuant to article 55 of the Convention (art. 57, para. 3), Azerbaijan reported partial implementation of the relevant measures. Azerbaijan reported partial compliance with paragraph 4. Azerbaijan stated that it had not taken measures to implement the non-mandatory provision of paragraph 5, on the conclusion of agreements on the final disposal of confiscated property.

The Committee expresses the firm hope that in the context of the planned legislative reform, further to the adoption of the new Constitution (enacted on 7 February 2009), all of its comments will be taken into account. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on any developments in this respect and recalls that, if it so wishes, it may have recourse to the technical assistance of the Office. The Committee on the Freedom of Association, like the CEACR, considers that criminal sanctions should not be imposed on any worker for participating in a peaceful strike and therefore, measures of imprisonment should not be imposed on any account; such sanctions may only be imposed if during a strike violence against persons or property or other infringements of common law are committed for which there are provisions set out in legal instruments and which are punishable there under. The Committee also recalls that the principles of freedom of association do not protect abuses consisting of criminal acts while exercising the right to strike. The Committee requests the Government: (1) to keep it informed as to the ruling that is handed down in respect of the trade union officials; and (2) to forward the present report and the abovementioned principles to the relevant judicial authority.

CEACR 2. 2009 3. www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---.../wcms_103484.pdf	The Committee urges the Government to take the necessary steps to ensure that the persons using the labour of children under 18 years of age in the sugar cane and brazil nut harvesting industry in conditions of debt bondage or forced labour are prosecuted and that effective and dissuasive sanctions are applied to them. It requests the Government in this connection on the effect given to the provisions that apply to these worst forms of child labour, including statistics on the number and nature of offences reported, the investigations held, prosecutions, and the sentences and penal sanctions applied. The Committee requests the Government to take the necessary steps as a matter of urgency to ensure that no child under 18 years of age shall engage in hazardous work in mining. It also requests the Government to provide information on the application in practice of the legislation governing hazardous work, including statistics on the number and nature of offences reported, the investigations held, prosecutions, the sentences and penalties applied.

		The Committee strongly encourages the Government to step up its efforts and to take time-bound measures, particularly in implementing the Three Year Plan 2006–08 and PNEPTI 2000–10 to: (a) prevent children from being placed in debt bondage or forced labour in the sugar cane and brazil nut harvesting industry; and (b) provide the necessary and appropriate direct assistance for the removal of children from these worst forms of child labour. It requests the Government to provide information on the results obtained. Finally, it requests the Government to send information on the measures taken to ensure the rehabilitation of these children. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on the time-bound measures taken under the Provisional Inter-ministerial Plan 2007–08 for the Guarani people, in order to prevent the children of these people falling into debt bondage or forced or compulsory labour. The Committee also requests the Government to provide a copy of the National Plan for the Elimination of Forced Labour as soon as it is adopted.

United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs Convention on Psychotropic Substances	1. INCB 2. 24 February 2010 3. http://www.incb.org/incb/en/annual-report-2009.html	General: The Board notes with concern that both the reported total area under coca bush cultivation and the expected coca leaf production have increased over the past few years in the Plurinational State of Bolivia. The Board recalls the expressed commitment of the Government when introducing its present policies towards coca bush cultivation and coca leaf production: zero tolerance of trafficking in cocaine and all related activities (cultivation, production etc.). The Board urges the Government of the Plurinational State of Bolivia to adopt more effective policies and strengthen its efforts to eradicate illicit coca bush cultivation in the country, as well as to address in a decisive manner the illicit manufacture of and trafficking in cocaine.
Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances		Specific: The Board notes with concern that, despite the social control measures currently being pursued by the Government with the aim of reducing coca bush cultivation and coca leaf production in the country, both the reported total area under coca bush cultivation and the expected coca leaf production have increased over the past few years. The Board urges the Bolivian Government to adopt more effective policies and to take a more proactive role in the elimination of illicit coca bush cultivation and coca leaf production in the country, as well as to address in a decisive manner the illicit manufacture of and trafficking in cocaine. The Board underlines that measures to promote alternative development in areas affected by coca bush cultivation, accompanied by sustained law enforcement efforts to prevent the re-emergence of such cultivation, are essential to the achievement of a lasting reduction in and the eventual elimination of the illicit production of coca leaf and

		manufacture of cocaine in the country. This illustrates the fact that it is difficult for a Government to control licit drug production when faced with thriving local drug trafficking. Coca leaf is defined as a narcotic drug in the 1961 Convention. The Board is aware of the right of States parties to the 1961 Convention to propose amendments to the Convention in accordance with article 47. In fact, the Board has provided the Bolivian Government with relevant information on the proper mechanism for changing the scope of the Convention. The Board wishes to remind the Government that until such amendments are effected, all the uses of coca leaf considered by the Government as traditional, including coca-leaf chewing and the manufacture and consumption of coca tea, as well as all other products derived from the coca leaf of which alkaloids have not been removed, continue to be illicit activities under the terms of the Convention. In so far as coca leaf remains under international control, the Plurinational State of Bolivia, as a party to the 1961 Convention as amended by the 1972 Protocol, must ensure full compliance with its obligations under the Convention, including the obligation to eliminate all uses of coca leaf for purposes other than those provided for in the Convention. The Board, in response to the above-mentioned developments in drug control in the country, has strengthened its dialogue with the Bolivian Government over the past few years. In particular, the Board sent a mission to the country in 2007, to discuss with competent national authorities the Government's policies on coca bush cultivation and coca leaf production, as well as progress made by the Government in that regard since the previous mission of the Board to that country, in 2001. The Board notes with regret that the Government has yet to implement almost all the recommendations made pursuant to the 2001 mission. In Bolivia (Plurinational State of), the area under illicit coca bush cultivation increased for the third consecutive year. The Board, concerned about the continued increase in the total area under illicit coca bush cultivation in Bolivia (Plurinational State of), urges the Government to take appropriate measures to reverse the trend. The Board wishes to remind the Governments of all countries concerned, in particular the Government of the Plurinational State of Bolivia, that unless any further amendments to the 1961 Convention are put into effect, the use or importation of coca leaf from which cocaine has not been extracted, for purposes other than those allowed under the 1961 Convention, constitutes a breach of obligations under the Convention (see paragraphs 156-166 above). The Board calls on the Governments of Bolivia (Plurinational State of) to enhance its programmes to

		reduce illicit drug supply in order to address the increasing illicit cultivation of coca bush in the country, which is apparently a result of drug traffickers' attempts to offset the decline in the total area under coca bush cultivation in Colombia. The Board urges the Governments of Bolivia (Plurinational State of), in spite of perceived difficulties in combating illicit manufacture of and trafficking in cocaine, not to reduce efforts in those areas and to address in a decisive manner the increasing illicit cultivation of coca bush on its territory. At the same time, the Board believes that measures to provide legitimate and sustainable alternative livelihoods, accompanied by continued law enforcement efforts to prevent the re-emergence of illicit crop cultivation, are essential to achieving a lasting reduction in the production of coca and other narcotic drugs in South America. Despite the dismantling of a large number of cocaine laboratories in the Plurinational State of Bolivia in recent years, the seizures of potassium permanganate reported in the country remained low, totalling less than 500 kg in the period 2000-2008. The Board notes with concern that, with the exception of the clandestine potassium permanganate laboratories seized in Colombia, the origin of the potassium permanganate seized in South American countries remains unknown. The Board calls on the Governments of countries in the Americas and the regional members of the Project Cohesion Task Force to devise strategies to address the smuggling of potassium permanganate into the cocaine-manufacturing areas of South America

The Committee once again expresses deep regret at the murders and acts of violence against trade unionists which have been occurring for many years and those that have occurred in 2009, since the previous examination of the application of the Convention. Taking into account the gravity of the situation, the Committee recognizes all the measures, of a practical and legislative nature, that the Government has been adopting recently to combat violence in general and violence against the trade union movement and it notes a decrease in the murders of trade unionists between 2008 and 2009, and in violence in general. The Committee hopes that the new measures will make it possible to combat violence against trade unionists effectively and will lead to the conviction of those responsible. The Committee requests the Government to indicate in its next report on any developments in this respect. The Committee requests the Government to provide information in its next report on the following legislative issues that are still pending: right of workers, without distinction whatsoever, to establish and join organizations; right to establish organizations without previous authorization; right of workers' organizations to organize their activities and to formulate their programmes; Restrictions imposed on the activities of federations and confederations. With regard to the allegations of violent repression of a trade union meeting, banning of a strike, anti-union dismissals and arrest of trade unionists, the Committee on the Freedom of Association requests the Government to keep it informed of the outcome of the administrative inquiry and of the ruling handed down on the complaint lodged by the company in connection with the damage caused to its installations. With regard to the banning of the work stoppage by the workers affiliated to SINTRAIME, the

The Committee is aware that the Decree is very short, can be improved and establishes principles which probably require further regulation to comply more effectively with its objectives and to extend in practice collective agreements in the various institutions. While from a technical viewpoint such regulation may well be appropriate, the Committee recalls that the Convention does not require exhaustive regulation, but rather is compatible with systems that envisage a minimum of interference by the State in collective bargaining in the public sector. While recalling that collective accords negotiated directly with workers should not be used to undermine the position of trade union organizations, the Committee requests the Government to provide information on the measures adopted to encourage and promote the full development and utilization of voluntary collective bargaining, in accordance with Article 4 of the Convention, and to ensure that the conclusion of collective accords negotiated directly with the workers is only possible in the absence of a trade union and that it is not carried out in practice for anti-union purposes. As regards the allegations that, in the context of the liquidation of the Cali Public Sanitation Services, the collective agreement in force was not observed with respect to the compensation and pension benefits linked to the dismissals, the Committee on the Freedom of Association requests the Government to keep it informed on the views expressed in the allegations and of the final outcome of the abovementioned judicial proceedings. The Committee further expects that freedom of association and collective bargaining rights are respected in the labour cooperative currently carrying out the work previously carried out by the company.

The Committee asks the Government once again to take the necessary steps to ensure that account is taken not only of the ordinary, basic or minimum wage or salary but also of “any additional emoluments whatsoever payable directly or indirectly, whether in cash or in kind, by the employer to the worker and arising out of the worker’s employment” to ensure equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value. The Committee asks the Government to include information in this respect in its next report. The Committee urges the Government to amend the legislative provisions to bring them into line with the principle of equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value, and to provide information on steps taken in this regard. The Committee again asks the Government to supply information in its next report on the way in which it collaborates with the employers’ and workers’ organizations concerned in order to apply the provisions of the Convention, and in particular on any training activities relating to the principle of the Convention and the adoption of measures for promoting objective job evaluation on the basis of the tasks involved. The Committee would welcome further information on the results of, and follow-up to, research on the gender wage gap. The Committee asks the Government once again to supply statistical information to the extent possible, in accordance with its 1998 general observation.

With reference to Security Council resolution 1612 of 26 July 2005, which recalls “the responsibilities of States to end impunity and to prosecute those responsible for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and other egregious crimes perpetrated against children”, the Committee urges the Government to ensure that investigations and prosecutions of offenders are undertaken and that effective and deterrent penalties are imposed on any person found guilty of recruiting or using children under 18 years of age for the purpose of armed conflict. It requests the Government to supply information in this regard. The Committee requests the Government to supply information on the implementation of national programmes and projects for the prevention and elimination of the forced recruitment of children into illegal armed groups adopted under the “National Strategy for preventing and eliminating the worst forms of child labour and protecting young workers (2008–15)”, and on the results achieved. The Committee strongly encourages the Government to continue its efforts and take steps to remove children from armed conflict and ensure their rehabilitation and social integration. In this regard, it requests the Government to supply information on the number of children under 18 years of age who have been rehabilitated and reintegrated into their communities as a result of these measures.

United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs	1. INCB 2. 24 February 2010	General: Surveys conducted by the Government and UNODC indicate that in 2008 illicit coca bush cultivation in Colombia declined substantially compared with the previous year and that such cultivation returned to levels recorded at the beginning of the decade. The Board encourages the Government of Colombia to continue its eradication program and to further strengthen its efforts in addressing drug abuse and drug trafficking in the country. Specific: The large amount of potassium permanganate seized in countries in South America, in particular Colombia, in the past few years indicates that current control measures may not be sufficient to deal with the smuggling and the illicit manufacture of potassium permanganate in the region. The Board again calls on Governments of countries in South America to design strategies similar to those developed in the framework of Project Cohesion, which led to an increased interception rate and the identification of sources of precursors used in the illicit manufacture of heroin. The Board is concerned that in 2008 the illicit manufacture of cocaine hydrochloride in Colombia was estimated at 430 tons — about 51 per cent of the world total. The Board urges the Government to continue taking effective measures to address that problem. The Board underlines the necessity of ensuring alternative livelihoods for farmers currently engaged in coca bush cultivation and encourages the Government to strengthen its programs in that area. The Board encourages the Government to enhance its efforts to ensure that progress is made in addressing drug abuse and drug trafficking in the country and to increase its cooperation with countries in Africa in an effort to address the problem of illicit drug consignments entering that region. The Board notes with concern that in countries in South America, such as Argentina, Brazil and

		Colombia (and in countries in North America, such as Mexico and the United States), there is a growing movement to decriminalize the possession of controlled drugs, in particular cannabis, for personal use. Regrettably, influential personalities, including former high-level politicians in countries in South America, have publicly expressed their support for that movement. The Board is concerned that the movement, if not resolutely countered by the respective Governments, will undermine national and international efforts to combat the abuse of and illicit trafficking in narcotic drugs. In any case, the movement poses a threat to the coherence and effectiveness of the international drug control system and sends the wrong message to the general public. 2007-8 - In Colombia, seizures of cocaine hydrochloride increased by 57 per cent to 198.4 tons. Prohibition upon foreigners from holding office or exercising authority in trade unions (article 60, second paragraph, of the Constitution and section 345(e) of the Labour Code); obligation for the trade union assembly to appoint the executive board each year; right of organizations to organize their activities and to formulate their programmes in full freedom. The Committee requests the Government to indicate any developments regarding the need for Bill No. 13475, in amending section 344 of the Labour Code, to establish a specific and short period during which the administrative authority is to reach a decision on the registration of trade unions and after which, in the absence of a decision, legal personality is deemed to have been obtained. The Committee hopes that the National Assembly will address all pending matters without delay. The Committee requests the Government to provide information in this respect. The Committee notes that the Government has requested the technical assistance of the ILO to ascertain the conformity of the Bill to reform labour procedures (No. 15990) with the principles of Conventions No 87 and 98 and it suggests that such assistance should be provided as soon as the joint commission is established in the Legislative Assembly. The Committee once again emphasizes that the pending matters raise important issues relating to the application of the Convention. Taking into account the various ILO missions that have visited the country over the years and the gravity of the problems, the Committee hopes to be in a position to note substantial progress in the near future in both law and practice. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on this matter in its next report.

		The Committee requests the Government to provide official statistical data on the number of trade unions and higher level organizations (in the public and private sectors) and the number of trade union members. The Committee requests the Government to provide its comments on the ITUC's communication, dated 26 August 2009 and particularly on: (1) its allegation that in the event of a strike the unions are required to provide the names of the strikers; (2) its statement that unions are practically non-existent in the private sector; (3) the alleged unlawful arrest of a trade union leader in the construction sector; and (4) the violation of the Act by prohibiting trade union activities by solidarist associations in certain banana and pineapple ranches.

		workers and to avoid direct agreements being used for anti-union purposes, which is to be presumed where a representative trade union already exists. The Committee expresses the hope that the Legislative Assembly will be established without delay and will take up the issues pending. It requests the Government to provide information in this regard. It notes that the Government has requested ILO technical assistance in ascertaining the consistency of the text of the Bill to reform labour procedure (No 15990) with the principles of Conventions No 87 and 98, and suggests that such assistance be provided as soon as the Joint Committee is set up in the Legislative Assembly. In addition, the CAS observed that, despite the existence of these problems for many years and the fact that the case had been discussed on several occasions, there had not been sufficient progress in the application of the Convention in either law or practice, although the new Government indicated certain efforts and actions to achieve improvements in the application of the Convention. The Committee therefore expressed the firm hope that, in the very near future, it would be able to note substantial progress in the application of the Convention and trusted that the legislative drafts upon which there has been tripartite consensus would be examined by the legislature and adopted without delay.

In these circumstances, so as to allow the re-election of officers of workers' and employers' organizations. Also, the Committee requests the Government to take all necessary steps to repeal or amend the provisions of the Constitution to ensure that compulsory arbitration is possible only in the instances mentioned. The Committee requests the Government to take appropriate measures in order to modify this provision so as to ensure that the right to strike can be exercised in the abovementioned services, with the possibility to provide a system of minimum services which is to be determined with the participation of workers' and employers' organizations. The Committee points out that for many years it has been asking the Government to take steps to repeal or amend several provisions that are not in compliance with the convention. The Committee hopes that it will be able to note progress in the legislation in the near future and asks the Government in its next report to provide information on all developments in this regard. It reminds the Government that it may seek technical assistance from the Office in the context of its reform of the Labour Code. The Committee has received information about two proposals for acts being debated in the National Assembly: the Basic Public Service Act and the Basic Act on Public Enterprises. The Committee hopes that the new texts will establish in full the rights laid down in the Convention: the right to organize of public officials and employees and the right to strike of public servants other than those exercising authority in the name of the State.

		Furthermore, the Committee once again asks the Government to provide information on the number of associations that have been set up for the promotion and defence of the interests of public servants, the sectors covered and the approximate number of members.

It reminds the Government that it may seek technical assistance from the ILO in proceeding with the amendment of the Labour Code and the Public Service Act.

Imprisonment involving compulsory labour for participation in strikes, of the Convention is applied. The Committee has previously referred to Decree No. 105 of 7 June 1967 which allows a prison sentence of two to five years to be imposed on any person fomenting or taking a leading part in a collective work stoppage. Noting the most recent information provided by the Government, according to which Decree No. 105 is not in force, the Committee hopes that the Government will provide a copy of the text repealing that Decree and, in the event that the Decree concerned has not been formally repealed, the Committee once again expresses the hope that the Government will take the necessary measures to repeal it, thereby bringing the national legislation into conformity with the requirements of the Convention. Noting with regret that the new Constitution prohibits strikes in services that are not essential in the strict sense of the term and that such interruption may be punished as a penal offence, the Committee hopes that the Government will review this situation in the light of Convention No. 87 and Convention No. 105 which protects against prison sentences involving compulsory labour as a punishment for participation in peaceful strikes, and that it will provide information on the measures taken or envisaged to ensure compliance with the Convention. The Committee hopes that the Government will provide the information requested and will indicate the measures taken or envisaged to ensure that prison sentences involving compulsory labour are not imposed for the peaceful expression of political views.

The Committee also requests the Government to provide detailed information on the policies and programmes intended to ensure equality of opportunity and treatment in employment and occupation for women, especially indigenous women, migrant women and women of African descent, and their impact. The Committee requests the Government to provide further information on the introduction of gender

		as a cross-cutting issue in the standards issued by the SENRES with the objective of women gaining access to public employment and the impact of this measure. Noting that the Framework Inter-institutional Cooperation Agreement expires in December 2009, the Committee requests the Government to provide information on the measures envisaged to continue ensuring the application of the principle of the Convention in the public sector. The Committee also refers to its comments on the application of the Equal Remuneration Convention, 1951 (No. 100). The Committee urges the Government to take this opportunity to repeal section 17(b) of the Regulations of the Cooperatives Act, under which married women require the authorization of their husbands to be members of agricultural housing and family garden cooperatives. The Committee hopes that the Government will be in a position to provide information on the progress achieved in this respect in its next report. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on the impact that the compendium on sexual harassment in the fields of education, labour, politics and domestic work (prepared by the Gender and Youth Unit of the Ministry of Labour) has had in terms of preventing sexual harassment in the working environment and to provide information on other measures that are being adopted to raise awareness of the harmful effects of harassment at the workplace. The Committee invites the Government once again to take appropriate legislative measures to prohibit sexual harassment in employment and occupation which include both quid pro quo and hostile work environment harassment. The Committee requests the Government to provide detailed information on the results and impact of the various types of action envisaged in the National Development Plan 2007–10, including the application of affirmative action measures, the development of the “Work without discrimination” programme and the action taken to promote and increase the access of young Afro-Ecuadorian persons to university. The Committee also requests information on the measures promoted, as envisaged in the Plan, to monitor and punish any act of racial discrimination against Afro-Ecuadorian persons on the labour market.
138 - Minimum Age for Admission to Employment	1. CEACR 2. 2009 3. www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/p	The Committee is deeply concerned at the situation of children under 14 years of age who are compelled to work and urges the Government to intensify its efforts to gradually improve the situation. It requests the Government to take the necessary steps, in the context of the various public policies and the ILO–IPEC project on the “Elimination of child labour in Latin America”, to abolish child labour. It requests the Government to supply information on the results achieved. The Committee also requests

	ublic/---.../wcms_103484.pdf	the Government to provide information on the application of the Convention in practice, including, for example, statistics relating to the employment of children and young persons, and extracts of the reports of the inspection services, particularly inspections conducted in the abovementioned sectors [in particular banana and flower industries]. Finally, it requests the Government to supply a copy of the new “National Plan for the prevention and elimination of child labour”, once it has been formulated. Considering that compulsory education is one of the most effective means of combating child labour, the Committee urges the Government to continue its efforts to improve the functioning of the education system in the country and to take measures to enable children to attend compulsory basic education or enter an informal school system. In this regard, it requests the Government to supply information on the measures taken to increase the secondary school enrolment rate. Finally, the Committee requests the Government to supply information on the results achieved. The Committee expresses the firm hope that the regulations implementing the Children and Young Persons Code will be adopted in the near future, will take account of the comments made above and will lay down the conditions of employment for children and young persons in artistic performances. It requests the Government to supply information on any new developments in this regard.
182 - Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour	1. CEACR 2. 2009 3. www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---.../wcms_103484.pdf	The Committee encourages the Government to continue its efforts to ensure, in practice, the protection of children under 18 years of age against these worst forms of child labour. In this respect, it requests the Government to continue to provide information on the application of the provisions of the Penal Code applying to the crimes of sexual exploitation against minors of less than 18 years of age in practice. Furthermore, taking account of the information that persons have been prosecuted and sentenced, the Committee requests the Government to provide copies of the judgements handed down by virtue of the provisions in the Penal Code in its next report. The Committee strongly encourages the Government to continue its efforts and requests it to provide information on the time-bound measures taken, when implementing the National Plan to combat the trafficking of persons and commercial sexual exploitation and the plans to combat the commercial exploitation of children and the trafficking of children for this purpose in Cuenca and Machala, to: (a) prevent children from being victims of commercial sexual exploitation or trafficking for this purpose; and (b) provide the necessary and appropriate direct assistance to remove child victims from these worst forms of child labour. It requests the Government to continue providing information on the results obtained. The Committee also requests the Government to provide information on the implementation of the National Programme of protection for children and young persons who are

		victims of commercial sexual exploitation or trafficking for this purpose, especially with respect to the measures taken in the context of this programme to guarantee the rehabilitation and social integration of the victims of this worst form of child labour. The Committee requests the Government to indicate whether the exchanges of information with Peru and Colombia, carried out in the context of the agreements signed between the police and judicial services, have made it possible: (a) to identify and arrest persons working in networks involving the trafficking of children; and (b) to detect and intercept child victims of trafficking at the borders.

87 - Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organise	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. CEACR 2. 2010 3. http://www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---ed_norm/---relconf/documents/meetingdocument/wcms_123424.pdf 	The Committee recalls that its previous comments concerned the Law on trade unions and the Labour Code of 2006. The Committee hopes that any proposed amendments will take into account its comments and requests the Government to provide information on the developments in this regard. The Committee notes that, in its report, the Government indicates that a memorandum was signed between the Ministry of Health, Labour and Social Affairs (MoHLSA), the GTUC and the GEA with a view to institutionalizing social dialogue in the country. Since then, the social partners have been regularly holding sessions to discuss issues concerning the labour legislation with an emphasis on the issues of compliance with Conventions Nos 87 and 98. The Committee further notes with interest that, in line with the conclusions of the Conference Committee on the Application of Standards, over the course of 2009, the ILO has been providing technical support to the tripartite constituents to advance the process of dialogue and the review of the labour legislation. The Committee further notes with interest the holding in October 2009 of an ILO tripartite round table in Tbilisi which discussed the current status of national labour legislation, application of Convention No. 87 and the Right to Organise and Collective Bargaining Convention, 1949 (No. 98), and promotion of tripartism in Georgia. The Committee also notes with interest Decree No. 335 of 12 November 2009 issued by the Prime Minister of Georgia, which formalized and institutionalized the National Social Dialogue Commission, as well as the creation of a tripartite working group to review and analyse the conformity of the national legislation with the findings and recommendations of the Committee and to propose the necessary amendments. The Committee had previously requested the Government to amend section 2(9) of the Law on Trade Unions so as to lower the minimum trade union membership requirement set at 100. The

		Committee considers that the minimum requirement of 100 workers to establish unions by branch of activity, occupation or for various occupations is too high and should be reduced. The Committee therefore once again requests the Government to provide information with its next report on the measures taken or envisaged to amend section 2(9) of the Law on trade unions so as to lower the minimum trade union membership requirement and, in the meantime, to indicate the impact of this provision on the establishment of trade unions at the branch or sectoral levels, including information on the number of such trade unions and their respective membership. The Committee had previously noted section 49(5) of the Labour Code providing that, after the warning strike, the parties shall participate in the amicable settlement procedures pursuant to the Labour Code. The Committee had noted, however, that the Labour Code did not provide for such a procedure and requested the Government to give consideration to appropriate mechanisms of conciliation, mediation or voluntary arbitration instead. Noting that in its report the Government recognizes the need to develop mechanisms of conciliation and mediation to help reduce the incidence of disputes, the Committee requests the Government to indicate the concrete measures taken to that end. With regard to section 48(5) of the Code, according to which, if an agreement is not reached within 14 days, one of the parties is entitled to submit the dispute to the court or arbitration, the Committee had recalled that a provision which permitted either party unilaterally to submit the dispute for compulsory arbitration effectively undermined the right of workers to call a strike. The Committee understands that, under section 48(5), the results of the arbitration (or court) procedure are compulsory and would therefore render meaningless the right to strike. The Committee therefore reiterates its previous request and asks the Government to indicate measures taken or envisaged to amend section 48(5) of the Code. The Committee had also noted section 49(8) of the Code, which provided that a strike could not continue for more than 90 calendar days. With regard to the duration of the strike, the Committee considers that a legislation limiting duration of the strike to 90 days seriously undermines one of the essential means through which workers and their organizations may promote and defend their economic and social interests. The Committee considers that the right to strike should not be restricted though predetermined limitation on the duration imposed by the legislation and requests the Government to take the necessary measures to repeal this provision. The Government may wish to consider, however, establishing a system of negotiated minimum services when dealing with a strike in non-essential services, which due to its extent and duration endangers the normal living

Instead of prohibition of strikes in such services, the Committee suggested establishing a system of minimum services. The Committee notes the Government's indication that section 51(2) sets the minimum services requirement. The Committee points out, however, that this provision refers to the prohibition of strikes, without any reference to the system of minimum services and conditions thereof. The Committee therefore once again requests the Government to amend section 51(2) of the Code taking into account the above principle and to indicate measures taken or envisaged in this respect. The Committee had requested the Government to amend section 51(4) and (5) of the Code providing that a strike by employees informed about termination of their contract before the dispute arises is illegal and that, if the right to strike arises before the termination of the time-based contract, the strike is considered illegal after the expiration of the term of the contract. The Committee notes that the Government confirms that after the termination of the labour contract the strike is considered illegal and indicates that there is no need for an amendment of the Code in this regard. The Committee draws the Government's attention to the situations (mentioned above) when the right to strike can be restricted or prohibited. It notes furthermore that the prohibition imposed on workers in section 51(4) and (5) would run counter to the workers' right to go on sympathy and protest strikes, which, according to the Government's indication, are legal under the national legislation. The Committee therefore requests the Government to take the necessary measures in order to amend section 51(4) and (5) so as to bring it in line with the above principle and to indicate measures taken or envisaged in this respect. Case 2663: Allegations: Failure of the Labour Code to provide adequate and sufficient protection against anti-union dismissals; dismissal of nine trade union activists from Poti Sea Port and nine trade union activists from BTM Textile and failure of the Government to provide redress. CFA requests the Government, in full consultation with the social partners concerned, to take the necessary measures to amend the Labour Code so as to ensure specific protection against anti-union discrimination, including anti-union dismissals and provide for sufficiently dissuasive sanctions against such acts. 98 - Application of the Principles of the Right to Organise and to Bargain Collectively	1. CEACR and CAS 2. 2010 3. http://www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---ed_norm/---relconf/documents/meetingdocument/wcms_123424.pdf	The Committee recalls that it had previously expressed its concern at the several provisions of the Labour Code adopted in 2006. In particular, the Committee considered that the Labour Code did not provide for an adequate protection against anti-union discrimination and meaningful promotion of collective bargaining. The Committee hopes that any proposed amendments will take into account its following comments and requests the Government to provide information on the developments in this regard. The Committee trusts that the necessary measures to revise sections 5(8), 37(d) and 38(3) of the Labour Code will soon be taken so as to ensure that the Labour Code provides for an adequate protection against anti-union discrimination taking into account the principles above. It requests the Government to provide information on the measures taken or envisaged in this respect. The Committee notes article 42 of the Code of Administrative Breaches and section 142 of the Criminal Code imposing penalties for violation of the labour legislation. The Committee requests the Government to indicate the form of compensation available to workers, victims of acts of anti-union discrimination, including dismissals, transfers, downgrading, etc. With regard to the Committee's previous request to provide for rapid appeal procedures, coupled with effective and dissuasive sanctions against acts of interference, the Committee notes the Government's statement that section 42 of the Code of Administrative Violations punishes violations of labour legislation and labour protection rules by a penalty equivalent to a minimum of 100 times the labour remuneration and that the same violation committed within one year following the imposition of an administrative penalty is punishable by a penalty equivalent to 200 times the labour remuneration. The Committee had previously noted that, according to section 13 of the Labour Code, the employer (unilaterally) is authorized to specify the duration of a business week, the daily schedule, shifts, the duration of breaks, the time and place of remuneration payment, the duration of and the procedure for granting a leave and unpaid leave, the rules for complying with labour conditions, the type and the procedure for work-related incentives and responsibilities, the procedures for consideration of complaints/applications and other special rules subject to the specifics of the

	http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/99thSession/pr/lang--en/docName--WCMS_141871/index.htm	business of the organization. The Committee notes the Government's indication that an employer is authorized to introduce internal operation rules only if working conditions are not regulated by a labour agreement (either individual or collective) and that if working conditions are regulated by a labour agreement, such an agreement prevails over any other internal rules. Considering that direct negotiation between the undertaking and its employees, bypassing representative organizations where these exist, runs counter to the principle that negotiation between employers and organizations of workers should be encouraged and promoted, the Committee requests the Government to take the necessary measures in order to amend its legislation so as to ensure that the position of trade unions is not undermined by the existence of other employees' representatives or discriminatory situations in favour of the non-unionized staff. The Committee requests the Government to indicate any developments in this regard. The Committee notes the information provided by the Government according to which most of the Georgian state institutions and companies have collective agreements with trade unions. The Committee requests the Government to indicate the number of collective agreements concluded in the country within the next reporting period and to provide statistics in this regard in relation to the private sector. The CAS noted the oral and written information provided by the Government representative and the discussion that followed. The Committee observed that the Committee of Experts raised issues relating to an insufficiency in the legislative framework for the effective protection against anti-union discrimination and promotion of collective bargaining, which needed to be clarified in further detail in the Committee of Experts' next observation. The Committee took due note of the Government representative's statement and, in particular, the information regarding the tripartite roundtable held in October 2009 and the recently established Tripartite Social Partnership Commission set up to review the labour legislation and to examine some complaints of anti-union discrimination. The Government representative indicated that technical advisory services had been provided by the ILO with respect to this process. Finally, the Government representative made reference to companies that had concluded collective agreements with unions.

		The Committee welcomed the steps taken by the Government to institutionalize social dialogue in the country and urged the Government to intensify this dialogue. It hoped that this new social partnership, accompanied by ILO technical assistance, would give rise to concrete action ensuring that the legislation was fully in conformity with the Convention. It requested the Government to intensify its dialogue with the Committee of Experts with respect to any outstanding issues in its comments and to continue to provide detailed information on the application of the Convention in practice, including statistics on the number of confirmed cases of anti-union discrimination, the remedies provided and the sanctions imposed.

CEACR 2. 2010 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportsubmittedtotheConference/lang-en/docName--WCMS_123424/index.htm 	The Committee recalls that the Labour Code of 2006 contains no provision regarding equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value and that the Committee therefore pointed to the need to introduce legislation giving effect to this principle, as set out in the Convention. In its reply to the Committee's comments, the Government stated that the legislation guaranteed gender equality and that it protected women from any kind of discrimination. The Government referred in this respect to article 14 of the Constitution and to section 2(3) of the Labour Code. The Committee notes that while section 2(3) of the Labour Code is important in the context of the Convention, it falls short of giving legislative expression to the principle of equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value. The Committee considers that legislation that is more restrictive in its scope than is required to give effect to the principle of equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value is not in conformity with the Convention. Finally, the Committee notes that the absence of court cases regarding equal remuneration, as reported by the Government, may well indicate the lack of an appropriate legal basis for bringing such cases. Noting that the Action Plan on Gender Equality for 2007–09 provides for the creation of a legal framework for gender equality, the Committee urges the Government to strengthen the legislation by giving full legislative expression to the principle of equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value, with a view to ensuring full and effective implementation of the Convention. The Committee requests also the Government to provide information on the measures taken or

111 - Discrimination in Respect of Employment and Occupation	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. CEACR 2. 2010 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportssubmittedtotheConference/lang--en/docName--WCMS_123424/index.htm 	In its previous observation the Committee asked the Government whether the Labour Code's prohibition of discrimination "in employment relations" (section 2(3)) covers discrimination at the stage of recruitment and selection and whether it covers direct and indirect discrimination. The Committee notes the Government's statement that the Georgian legislation protects the population from any kind of discrimination, including in the Constitution, the Labour Code, and a number of other laws. The Government further stated that also indirect discrimination was prohibited by the Georgian legislation, including in the Penal Code and the Labour Code. The Government did not have information on any discrimination cases lodged before the court under the Labour Code. Taking into account the Government's statements that the legislation is meant to cover all forms of discrimination in employment and occupation, including discrimination in respect of recruitment and selection, as well as indirect discrimination, the Committee strongly recommends that the existing non-discrimination provisions of the Labour Code be amended: (i) to provide for a clear definition of direct and indirect discrimination; and (ii) to clarify that the prohibition of discrimination also applies to recruitment and selection, in accordance with the Convention. The Committee also asks the Government to provide information on the measures taken or envisaged to sensitize the judiciary, labour inspectors and the public regarding the prohibition of direct and indirect discrimination in employment and occupation. The Committee requests the Government as well to provide copies of relevant court decisions.

CEACR 2. 2009 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportssubmittedtotheConference/lang--en/docName-- 	The Committee notes the information provided by the GTUC concerning the work of children at the age of between 5 and 15 years in Georgia (including in the streets of Tbilisi and in agriculture) and the Government's reply. The Committee further notes the Government's indication that, in the near future, UNICEF plans to conduct a study on street children which would possibly help the Government to evaluate the actual situation and to plan for specific measures. The Committee, nevertheless, notes that according to the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey (MICS), UNICEF, in the period 1999-2005 there was an important drop in the percentage of children involved in labour in Georgia. In this respect, the Committee requests the Government to pursue its efforts to ensure that no child under the age of 15 years performs child labour in any sector of economic activity. It

	WCMS_103484/index.htm	also requests the Government to provide recent statistical information on the employment of children and young persons, in particular children working on the streets and in the agricultural sector. The Committee previously noted the Government's indication that self-employment is not regulated by the legislation of Georgia. The Committee had, therefore, requested the Government to provide information on the manner in which the protection afforded by the Convention is secured for children who work in the agricultural sector, as well as those working on their own account. The Committee notes the Government's information that, according to section 4(2) of the Labour Code, the labour capacity of children below 16 years shall only be permitted under certain conditions. The Committee reminds the Government that, by virtue of the minimum age specified by it, children under 15 years of age shall not be permitted to work, regardless of the type of work performed, and whether it is paid or not, with the exception of light work, which can only be carried out under the conditions laid down in Article 7 of the Convention. The Committee once again requests the Government to take the necessary measures to ensure that children working in the agricultural sector, as well as those working on their own account, are entitled to the protection afforded by the Convention. It also requests the Government to take measures to adapt and strengthen the labour inspection services, in order to ensure that the protection established by the Convention is applied to all self-employed children. The Committee previously noted that, according to section 4(5) of the Labour Code of 2006, it is prohibited to conclude a contract with under age persons for hard, unhealthy and hazardous work. It had also noted section 4(4) of the Labour Code, which prohibits under age persons from entering into a contract for work related to certain activities. The Committee requested the Government to indicate the legal provisions which define under age persons as persons under the age of 18 years. The Committee notes with interest the Government's information that, according to section 12 of the Civil Code of Georgia, a minor is a person under the age of 18 years. The Government further states that the Labour Code does not provide for a definition different from that of the Civil Code of Georgia. The Committee previously noted that, under the new Labour Code, a draft list of hard, harmful and hazardous work has been elaborated and sent to the employees' and employers' organizations for approval. The Committee notes with satisfaction the Government's information that the Minister of Labour, Health and Social Affairs adopted Order No. 147/N, 3 May 2007 which provides for a list of heavy, hazardous and harmful works. The Committee requests the Government to supply a copy of the above Order No. 147/N along with its next report.

		The Committee previously noted the comments by the GTUC and the Government concerning hours and other working conditions for children of 14-16 years of age. The Committee observes, however, that the Labour Code does not contain provisions which prescribe the number of working hours during which young persons may work. The Committee once again recalls that, according to Article 7, paragraph 3, of the Convention, the competent authority shall determine the activities in which employment or work may be permitted and shall prescribe the number of hours during which such employment or work may be undertaken. The Committee accordingly requests the Government to take the necessary measures to determine light work activities and to prescribe the number of hours during which light work may be undertaken by young persons of 14 years of age and above, in conformity with the Convention.

The Committee invites the Government to have recourse to ILO technical assistance to resolve the grave problem of criminal impunity with regard to crimes against trade unionists. The Committee requests the Government to provide regular information on the attainment of the objectives of the Road Map and the administrative, judicial and legal reforms set out therein. The Committee trusts that the objectives and measures envisaged in the Road Map will result within a reasonable period of time in crucial improvements with regard to the serious problems raised. The CAS noted that the Committee of Experts continued to raise with concern the following issues: numerous serious acts of violence, including murders and threats against trade union members; the stigmatization of trade unions; and legislative provisions and practices that were not in conformity with the rights set out in the Convention. The Committee of Experts had also noted the ineffectiveness of criminal procedures in relation to acts of violence, excessive delays in the judicial procedures and the lack of independence of the judicial authorities which was giving rise to a serious situation of impunity.

		The Committee noted with concern that the Government had not shown sufficient political will to take action to combat violence against trade union leaders and members and to combat impunity. The Committee emphasized the need to make substantial progress in sentencing in relation to acts of violence against trade unionists and in ensuring that, not only the direct authors of the crime, but also the instigators were punished. The Committee requested the Government to intensify its efforts to bring an end to impunity, including by considerably increasing the budgetary resources allocated to the judiciary, the prosecutors, the police and the labour inspectorate. Also observing with concern the generalized climate of violence, the Committee recalled that freedom of association could not be exercised in a climate where personal safety and basic civil liberties were not guaranteed. The Committee urged the Government to ensure simple and prompt recourse or any other effective recourse to competent courts or tribunals for protection against acts that were in violation of fundamental rights. The Committee requested the Government to take measures to strengthen social dialogue, redefine the representation bodies and guarantee access for workers' representatives that have been freely elected by the organizations existing in the country, in accordance with the comments of the supervisory bodies. In this regard, the Committee requested the Government to clarify the situation of the Trade Union Confederation of Guatemala (UNSITRAGUA) without delay, with ILO assistance. The Committee considered that innovative solutions needed to be examined with a view to addressing as a priority the issue of impunity and the pending legislative questions. The Committee requested the Government to accept the possibility of the visit of an important international public figure, accompanied by the ILO at a high level, to examine these matters and make recommendations. The Conference Committee on the Application of standards requested the Government to provide a detailed report to the Committee of Experts this year with information on tangible progress on all the above matters and expressed the firm hope that it would be in a position to note substantial improvements in the application of the Convention next year (2011).

The Government is also asked to provide specific information on the progress made in formulating a job classification system for the civil service, and to undertake an examination of the nature and extent of any wage disparities between men and women in the public sector. CEACR 2. 2009 3. www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---.../wcms_103484.pdf	The Committee firmly requests the Government to continue its efforts for the abolition of child labour. In this respect, the Committee requests the Government to provide information on the measures that are taken in the context of the second National Plan of Action for the Elimination of Child Labour (2008–15), and particularly the programmes of action that are implemented, and of the Decent Work Country Programme, with a view to the progressive abolition of child labour. It requests the Government to provide information on the results achieved. The Committee also invites the Government to provide information on the application of the Convention in practice including, for example, statistical data on the employment of children and young persons, extracts from the reports of the inspection services, and particularly inspections in the sectors referred to above [agriculture, forestry, fishing, domestic work, businesses, hotels and restaurants, manufacturing; construction, transport, shops and distribution]. Recalling once again that it has been raising this issue for a number of years, and taking into account the worrying statistics referred to above, the Committee expresses the firm hope that the draft revision of the Labour Code will be adopted as soon as possible and that it will contain provisions guaranteeing the protection provided for by the Convention in respect of children working in agricultural and stock-raising undertakings that do not permanently employ more than ten workers. It requests the Government to provide information in this respect. Furthermore, the Committee asks the Government to envisage the possibility of adapting and strengthening the labour inspection services so as to ensure the application of this protection. Considering that compulsory education is one of the most effective means of combating child labour, the Committee firmly requests the Government to redouble its efforts to improve the operation of the education system in the country and to take measures to enable children to attend compulsory basic education or to be integrated into an informal school system. In this respect, it requests the Government to provide information on the measures adopted to increase the school attendance rate, at both primary and secondary school, with a view to preventing children under 14 years of age from being engaged in work. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on the results achieved. Finally, the Committee once again requests the Government to provide a copy of the General Education Act once it has been adopted. In view of the fact that, according to the statistics contained in the national report on child labour in the Honduras of 2002, a large number of children still work in hazardous activities, the Committee once again requests the Government to take the necessary measures to ensure that, where a young person of 16 years of age is permitted to perform hazardous types of work, the conditions set forth in this provision of the Convention are observed. 182 - Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour	1. CEACR 2. 2009 3. www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---/wcms_103484.pdf	The Committee requests the Government to ensure, in practice, the protection of children under 18 years of age against this worst form of child labour. In this regard, it once again requests the Government to provide information on the application of the new provisions of the Penal Code in practice. Furthermore, taking into account the information that individuals have been prosecuted under these new provisions, the Committee requests the Government to provide the court decisions handed down in accordance with these provisions in its next report. Considering that education contributes to preventing the engagement of children in the worst forms of child labour, the Committee urges the Government to step up efforts to improve the operation of the education system in the country. In this regard, it requests the Government to provide information on the time-bound measures taken during the implementation of the 2008 National Plan of Action to increase the rate of school attendance, both at the primary and secondary levels. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on the results achieved. The Committee strongly encourages the Government to continue its efforts and requests it to provide information on the time-bound measures taken in the context of the implementation of the ILO–IPEC sub-regional project on the commercial sexual exploitation of children and the 2006 National Plan of Action. The Committee also requests the Government to provide information on the system of assistance for victims of commercial sexual exploitation, in particular concerning the measures taken in the context of this system to ensure the rehabilitation and social integration of victims of this worst form of child labour. The Committee requests the Government once again to provide information on the time-bound measures taken, in the context of the implementation of the National Plan of Action for the social integration of dependent children and women in the streets, to protect street children from the worst forms of child labour. Furthermore, the Committee requests the Government to provide information on the measures taken to ensure the rehabilitation and social integration of children who are actually removed from the streets. Noting that indigenous children are often victims of exploitation, which may take on very different forms, and are at risk of being engaged in the worst forms of child labour, the Committee requests the Government to continue its efforts to protect these children, in particular by adopting measures to make them less vulnerable. It requests the Government to provide information in this regard.

		The Committee requests the Government to take effective and time-bound measures, particularly in the context of the implementation of the 2008 National Plan of Action, to protect child domestic workers against the worst forms of child labour. It requests the Government to provide information on the measures taken in this regard. The Committee expresses the hope once again that, in the context of the implementation of the ILO–IPEC sub-regional project on the commercial sexual exploitation of children, the Government will take measures to cooperate with the participating countries and therefore strengthen security measures, particularly on the common borders with El Salvador, Guatemala and Nicaragua, with a view to bringing an end to this worst form of child labour. It requests the Government to provide information on this subject in its next report.

87 - Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organise	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. CEACR 2. 2009 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportssubmittedtotheConference/lang-en/docName--WCMS_103484/index.htm 	The Committee requests the Government to provide its observations on the ITUC's comments concerning arrest of strikers in the education sector and indications that several trade unionists were abducted and interrogated by the Government on suspicion of collaborating with insurgent groups. The Committee recalls that in its previous comments, it had noted the discrepancy between the minimum age for admission to employment and the minimum age for trade union membership and had pointed out that the minimum age for trade union membership should be the same as the minimum age for admission to employment. The Committee notes the Government's statement that a proposal initiated by the ILO-IPEC Sri Lanka programme to increase the minimum age for employment to 16 years – the same minimum age as for trade union membership – is being pursued. The Committee requests the Government to indicate any developments in this regard. The Committee expresses the hope that the amendments to the Trade Unions Ordinance to ensure that organizations of Government staff officers may join confederations of their own choosing, including organizations of workers in the private sector, and that first-level organizations of public employees may cover more than one ministry or department in the public service, will be adopted in the near future and requests the Government to indicate the progress made in this respect. Recalling that the prohibition of the right to strike in the public service should be limited to public servants exercising authority in the name of the State, the Committee trusts that the public service dispute settlement mechanism referred to by the Government will be developed in conformity with this principle. It requests the Government to indicate the progress made in this respect, and to transmit a copy of the draft mechanism document once an English version is available.

		The Committee once again requests the Government to amend sections 4(1) and 4(2) of the Industrial Disputes Act, so as to ensure that any reference of labour disputes to compulsory arbitration may only occur: (1) at the request of both parties to the dispute; (2) in the case of essential services in the strict sense of the term; and (3) in the case of public servants exercising authority in the name of the State. The Committee requests the Government to indicate all developments in this regard.
98 - Application of the Principles of the Right to Organise and to Bargain Collectively	1. CEACR 2. 2009 3. http://www.ilo.org/ilc/ILCSessions/98thSession/ReportssubmittedtotheConference/lang--en/docName--WCMS_103484/index.htm	Noting that the ITUC reiterates that the existing penalties [for contravention to the provisions on anti-union discrimination provided under the Industrial Disputes (Amendment) Act of 1999] are too low to provide sufficient deterrence, and that the Lanka Jathika Estate Workers' Union (LJEWU) alleges the same, the Committee requests the Government to ensure that the views of the social partners are fully taken into consideration in the process of updating penalties under the existing labour laws. It requests the Government to indicate the progress made in this regard. With regard to adequate protection against the anti-union discrimination, the Committee once again requests the Government: (1) to take measures, in consultation with the social partners, to guarantee a more expeditious and adequate procedure which, in particular, establishes short time periods for the examination of cases by the authorities; and (2) to indicate whether trade unions had the capacity to bring anti-union discrimination claims directly before the courts. The Committee requests the Government to provide information on the progress achieved by the measures taken by the Social Dialogue and Workplace Cooperation Unit and those taken in furtherance of the National Policy for Decent Work to promote collective bargaining, including information on the number of collective agreements concluded. Recalling that Article 2 of the Convention establishes the total independence of workers' organizations from employers in organizing their activities, the Committee requests the Government to provide its observations with respect to the ITUC's comments concerning this matter. It further requests the Government to indicate the developments concerning the promotion of collective bargaining in the export processing zone sector, including the number of collective agreements concluded by trade unions. Noting the ITUC's comment that the recognition of unions for collective bargaining purposes is hampered by excessive delays, and that employers tend to delay the holding of union certification polls to identify, victimize and on occasion dismiss the union activists concerned, the Committee once again

		requests the Government to indicate the measures taken to ensure that recognition provisions are effectively implemented in practice and to indicate any developments in this regard. The Committee, once again recalling that if no union covers more than 40 per cent of the workers, collective bargaining rights should be granted to all the unions in the unit, at least on behalf of their own members, requests the Government to take the necessary measures to give effect to this principle and to indicate the progress made in this regard. The Committee requests the Government to take the necessary measures to ensure the right of collective bargaining for public service workers, in accordance with this principle, and to indicate any developments in this regard.

The Committee trusts that during this process, it will be ensured that the principle of equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value will be taken into

Awaiting further steps being taken to adopt any such legislation, please provide information on the concrete measures taken to protect, in practice, citizens and non-citizens against discrimination on the basis of race, colour, national extraction, religion, political opinion and social origin. Please also provide information on the number and nature of employment discrimination cases that have been handled by the Supreme Court pursuant to articles 12(1) and 17 of the Constitution, as well as how persons can obtain redress with respect to discrimination by private employers on the grounds enumerated in Article1(1)(a) of the Convention. In order to be able to assess more fully the progress being made in the application of the Convention, the Committee asks the Government to provide the following information: (i) information (e.g. surveys, studies, as well as statistics disaggregated by sex) demonstrating the impact of the measures taken to promote women's upward mobility and access to a wider range of jobs and occupations; (ii) the measures taken, and their impact to improve the working conditions in the export processing zones as well as to address the employment situation of women in the informal economy; (iii) the steps taken to include provisions prohibiting and preventing sexual harassment in national labour law; (iv) any other measures taken to effectively address discrimination against women and promote their equality of treatment and opportunities in employment and occupation. The Committee also reiterates its request for information on the results of the legislative research commissioned by the National Committee on Women with respect to the laws identified as being detrimental to women in the area of employment and occupation.

In 2008, the total area of illicitly cultivated coca bush eradicated in the country decreased compared with the previous year. The Board urges the Government of Peru to strengthen its eradication efforts and, in particular, to prevent the expansion of coca bush cultivation in the country.
Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances		Specific: In Peru, the area under illicit coca bush cultivation increased for the third consecutive year. The Board, concerned about the continued increase in the total area under illicit coca bush cultivation in Peru, urges the Government to take appropriate measures to reverse the trend. The Board notes with concern that from 1999 to 2008, the total area under illicit coca bush cultivation in the country gradually increased by 17,400 ha, or 45 per cent. The Board calls on the Governments of Peru to enhance its programmes to reduce illicit drug supply in order to address the increasing illicit cultivation of coca bush in the country, which is apparently a result of drug traffickers' attempts to offset the decline in the total area under coca bush cultivation in Colombia. The Board urges the Government of Peru, in spite of perceived difficulties in combating illicit manufacture of and trafficking in cocaine, not to reduce its efforts in those areas and to address in a decisive manner the increasing illicit cultivation of coca bush on its territory. At the same time, the Board believes that measures to provide legitimate and sustainable alternative livelihoods, accompanied by continued law enforcement efforts to prevent the re-emergence of illicit crop cultivation, are essential to achieving a lasting reduction in the production of coca and other narcotic drugs in South America. The Board calls on the Governments of countries in the Americas and the regional members of the Project Cohesion Task Force to devise strategies to address the smuggling of potassium permanganate into the cocaine-manufacturing areas of South America.

In this respect, it asks the Government to continue providing information on the measures adopted in the context of Plan 2021 to increase the enrolment rate, particularly for secondary education, so as to prevent children under 14 years of age from working. It requests the Government to continue providing information on the application of the new provisions of the Penal Code in practice. In particular, in view of the information to the effect that persons have been prosecuted under these new provisions, the Committee requests the Government to supply copies of any court decisions issued under these provisions in its next report. Finally, it requests the Government to supply a copy of the Act on migration and the status of foreigners once it has been adopted. The Committee requests the Government to supply information on the implementation of the national plan against trafficking of persons adopted in 2008, particularly by indicating the programmes of action to be adopted as part of this plan to eliminate the sale and trafficking of children under 18 years of age for sexual exploitation. It also requests the Government to send a copy of the plan to the Office. The Committee strongly encourages the Government to continue its efforts and requests it to provide information on the time-bound measures taken as part of the implementation of phase II of the Time-bound Programme (TBP) and the “Strategic plan on commercial sexual exploitation (2006–09)” to: (a) prevent children from becoming victims of commercial sexual exploitation or trafficking to this end; and (b) provide necessary and appropriate direct aid to remove children from these worst forms of child labour. It requests the Government to provide information on the results achieved. The Committee also requests the Government to provide information on the reception centres established by the Institute for the Development of Children and Young Persons (ISNA) and the Centre for the Immediate Protection of Children (CIPI), particularly regarding the measures taken in the context of these centres to ensure

United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs	1.INCB 2. 24 February 2010	Drug trafficking by sea remains a major problem in countries in Central America and the Caribbean. In El Salvador, for example, 85 per cent of the trafficked cocaine is transported along sea routes. Furthermore, light aircraft, operating from clandestine airstrips and landing in remote areas, are increasingly being used to transport cocaine. Drug traffickers are increasingly using stolen or falsified aircraft registration numbers when transporting illicit consignments by air. The Board encourages Governments to monitor the sale and movement of light aircraft more closely, step up airspace security and strengthen control of privately owned landing fields. A ministerial meeting was held in Managua in June 2009 under the auspices of the Central American Integration System (SICA) and UNODC. Ministers from Belize, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua and Panama declared their strong commitment to the fight against drug trafficking, organized crime and terrorism and the financing of such crime...The Board hopes that the political declaration will translate into effective regional cooperation in combating organized crime and drug trafficking.
