SPECIAL AUDIT OF PAST TOURISM ACTIONS (1990 - 1995) FINAL REPORT TO THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND TO THE COURT OF AUDITORS

1. Introduction

In its reply to the Court of Auditors Report 3/96<sup>1</sup> on tourism policy and its promotion the Commission indicated its intention to carry out a special audit of Community funded direct actions in tourism covering the period 1990 - 1995. This work commenced at the beginning of 1997 and in July of that year a Working Document of the Commission Services was provided to the Court, and made available to Parliament's Committee on Budgetary Control, giving an interim report on progress achieved. The Document sets out the scope of the audit, the methodology used, the personnel resources deployed, together with preliminary results as regards the financial aspects, and in relation to irregularities possibly linked to fraud.

The difficulties encountered in carrying out the investigations were also indicated, in particular the state of disorganisation of the documentation and the absence of essential records, notably in relation to the European Year of Tourism (EYT). As regards irregularities linked to fraud, the absence of co-operation between the investigating authorities in Belgium and in France and the consequences of the Commission not having access to the documents forming part of the judicial investigation in Belgium were considered to be important drawbacks to elucidating essential aspects of the matter.

The preliminary results of the audit were as follows:

- as regards the financial aspects: out of 31.4 MECU paid in respect of 718 actions (commitments), some 4.5 MECU was considered to have been overpaid;
- as regards irregularities possibly linked to fraud, sufficient elements were available to identify 66 organisations or structures, either already the subject of penal investigation in Member States, or showing indications which justified further investigation in the context of fraud.

The July 1997 document indicated also that the audit had not been fully completed in the case of some 115 of the oldest actions for an amount of some 6.8 MECU in payments. The outstanding work related mainly to the European Year of Tourism (1990), and included an audit of Euro-Conseil, the consultant engaged by the Commission in 1989 to help with the technical management of the EYT.

The present report gives the final results of the audit and conclusions in relation to the present state of fraud-related investigations. Details of each of the actions reviewed over the period are given by way of series of comprehensive annexes which form part of the report.

2. Developments in 1997/98

2.1. Ongoing Work in Tourism Unit

In parallel to this work, the Tourism Unit has been finalising outstanding actions launched during the last year of the Tourism Action Plan (1995) and whose duration did not permit them to be included in this special audit. These actions have been carefully monitored and controlled.

A number of tourism actions were launched in 1997 following the decision of the Budgetary Authority to provide budgetary credits (4 MECU) on line B5-325 for that year. These concerned studies in relation to Integrated Quality Management in Tourism, co-ordination of the Community-related measures in the campaign against Child Sex Tourism, a survey of tourists' travel intentions, servicing specialist (industry/Member State) groups such as the High Level Group on Tourism and Employment, on the euro and tourism, and on urban tourism, together with support for Presidency organised conferences on tourism-related themes, namely in Luxembourg (employment) and Austria (quality). No budgetary credits have been provided in respect of line B5-325 in 1998, although the campaign against Child Sex Tourism has continued with the help of credits (0.5 MECU) provided under a separate line (B7-663). The selections made following calls for tender (Integrated Quality Management) and the call for proposals (Child Sex Tourism) were carried out in accordance with the prescribed rules and practices including the participation, at the selection stage, of several officials from Directorates-General other than DG XXIII.

There has been a significant reinforcement of the co-ordination effort within the Commission on matters relating to tourism, with formal inter-Services meetings taking place at regular intervals, and intensified co-operation on a bilateral basis. It was decided in June 1998 to create a Directorate for Tourism within DG XXIII with three individual Units dealing respectively with (i) policy and third country aspects (ii) competitiveness of tourism and (iii) tourists' interests (as consumers) and quality.

The Council of Ministers at its meeting on 27 November 1997 was unable to reach agreement on the Commission's proposal for a First Multiannual Programme (1997 - 2000) in favour of Tourism.

2.2. Work by Special Audit Team

The audit investigations and related work carried out over the last 12 months have involved the following principal areas of activity:

- completion of outstanding audits, and technical evaluations of certain actions, notably from 1990 and 1991;
- issue of some 150 recovery orders in respect of actions already audited in July 1997, permitting also a further review of initial findings;
- correspondence with former beneficiaries and contractants in cases where sufficient elements do not exist to justify the immediate issue of recovery orders;
- preparation of briefing material for the Commission's Legal Representative in the case of forthcoming penal proceedings in France;
- preparing material requested by the Court of First Instance in the case of the claim for wrongful dismissal brought against the Commission by the ex-Head of the Tourism Unit;

- further scrutiny of the working documents supplied by the Court of Auditors in relation to the EYT, supplementing this material by related documentation in DG XXIII archives, with a view to contributing to the efforts of UCLAF in relation to further pursuit of irregularities, notably through the French and Belgian judicial procedures;
- ensuring that organisations and individuals who have come under adverse notice due to irregularities identified in the course of the special audit exercise, or who have not responded to recovery orders are included in the Early Warning System, established by the Commission in autumn 1997.

2.3. Judgements of Court of First Instance

Two important judgements in favour of the Commission have been given by the Court of First Instance in recent months:

- The first, Case T-331/94, IPK München GmbH v. Commission [1997] ECR II-1665, upheld the decision of the Commission not to pay the balance of 212.000 ECU to a beneficiary who had been considered not to have properly completed a project, and established some important principles in relation to the Commission's legal obligations vis-à-vis beneficiaries of subventions. This judgement has been appealed (Case C-433/97P).
- The second, Case T-74/96, judgement of 19 March 1998, upheld the decision of the Commission in relation to the dismissal of the former Head of the Tourism Unit and established important principles in relation to the responsibilities of officials, especially at Head of Unit level. This judgement has been appealed (Case C-191/98P).

2.4. Decisions on Lifting of Immunity

On 13 November 1997 the Commission decided, following a request of 6 November 1997 from the Belgian judicial authorities, to lift the immunity of two former officials and a serving official. On 3 March 1998 the Commission decided, following a request of 18 February from the Greek judicial authorities, to lift the immunity of a former official.

3. Community Actions in Tourism

Prior to outlining the results of the full audit of actions concerned it is appropriate to outline the basis for Community actions relating to tourism, the type of support provided, and the administrative arrangements applying over the period concerned.

3.1. Evolution of Policy Measures

In the period under review (1990-1995) the legislative basis for the tourism actions undertaken was (i) Council Decision (89/46/EEC) on an action programme for the European Year of Tourism (1990)<sup>2</sup>; and (ii) Council Decision (92/421/EEC) on the Tourism Action Plan (1993 - 1995)<sup>3</sup>. There was no specific legal basis for actions carried out in 1991 and 1992, although a large number of measures were undertaken in those years.

The European Year of Tourism, designated as the year 1990, was intended to exploit the integrating role of tourism in the creation of Europe and to stress the economic and social importance of the tourism sector. The actions undertaken concerned national projects, pan-European projects, miscellaneous actions (promotion, fairs, events, external correspondents, etc.), and the appointment of an external consultant to help with the technical management of the EYT.

With some notable (and problematic) exceptions, the 450 or so actions undertaken under the EYT were small scale events whose object and influence in the context of developing a Community policy on tourism was very limited; furthermore, the beneficiaries involved came from a variety of backgrounds, for example national and regional tourism bodies, local authorities, organisations promoting particular aspects of tourism, etc., in line with the encouragement given to have the greatest possible participation in the celebration of the Year (see Annex 6).

The Decision provided that a Steering Committee consisting of representatives of Member States and presided by the Commission, was to be consulted on the preparation and coordination of measures, and in particular on the selection of projects. In practice this Committee did not function as envisaged, and in particular did not provide a forum for the critical assessment of project proposals which de facto were often treated through the bilateral (DG XXIII/Member State) process. In addition to the Steering Committee National Committees were set up in each country in order to organise the EYT at national level and to make proposals concerning the financing of national projects. Member States had also a responsibility under the Council Decision for the proposing, monitoring and control of some measures.

In parallel to the EYT, 1990 saw the beginning also of a so-called studies programme on various aspects of tourism which continued into 1991/92 and was a priority item in the Tourism Action Plan (1993 - 1995). The actions financed in the years 1991 and 1992 were preparatory to the Tourism Action Plan, which was proposed in May 1992<sup>4</sup>, and involved pilot projects concerning the environment, rural and cultural tourism, statistics and promotion of Europe as a tourist destination and were undertaken by a wide range of organisations, including representative bodies in tourism.

The Tourism Action Plan, which set out to improve knowledge in the field of tourism, co-ordination of tourism measures within the Commission, dissemination of best practice in fields such as environment and tourism, and the promotion of Europe as a tourist destination, was a more ambitious initiative in terms of the range of the actions involved. These covered almost every conceivable aspect of tourism, for example, consumers, training, environment, rural, cultural, youth, social tourism together with promotion of Europe. The scale of measures was generally larger than in previous years, and the beneficiaries and contractants were a mix of small consultants, academics, and tourism organisations; some consisted of networks established to comply with transnational requirements; in some cases also, networks were used to access Community finance through doubtful means.

Chart 1: Tourism Actions 1989 - 1995 by Category
As Percentage of Total Payments

In accordance with article 6 of Council Decision 92/421/EEC the Commission sent to Parliament in April 1996 a comprehensive report<sup>5</sup> by an External Evaluator on actions undertaken under the Tourism Action Plan. This report gave a critical analysis of the deficiencies in the administration of the Plan, in the individual measures adopted, and in the policies pursued. Nevertheless the evaluator gave a high rating to some of the projects carried out in the latter stages of the Plan, a factor which suggests that, if properly managed and controlled, Community actions in tourism will be successful. Since 1996, there has been no legal basis for direct actions in tourism, although some measures have been undertaken in that period.

3.2. Financing Arrangements

Most of the measures involved pilot projects with varied rates of co-financing ranging from 40% for the EYT, to 60% for the Tourism Action Plan and up to 80% by way of ad hoc subventions in different years; various studies and promotion activities were undertaken also through contracts with the Commission. The complementary finance for projects was provided in some cases through contributions of public authorities or of commercial sponsors or through the beneficiaries' own resources. "In kind" contributions, especially to personnel costs were common, a factor which brings particular problems as regards justifying the costs charged. The consequence is that, while nominally projects were designated as co-financed initiatives, in some cases the method of charging, especially for fees, effectively meant that the Community was asked to finance a much higher proportion, if not all, of the real costs arising. Besides, some beneficiaries may not have fully understand that the Community subvention is based on real cost incurred, and no element of profit is permitted.

The 788 individual measures undertaken (see Annex 4) ranged from projects costing as little as a few thousand ECU (typically support for local events) to a small number of major actions involving expenditure of upwards 1 MECU, for example on promotion of Europe as a tourist destination. In other cases support was largely symbolic, and represented only a small part of project costs.

As regards the procedure for selecting beneficiaries, the earlier years were characterised by a large number of ad hoc subventions, that is without any competitive element or prior publication. And, in the case of the EYT, while many of the projects were subject to a formal selection process, in practice they were comparable to ad hoc subsidies. From 1992 onwards most of the subventions granted were as a result of published calls for proposals. Within this latter period a small number of significant ad hoc subventions were, however, granted for actions, many of which subsequently turned out to be problematic, that is linked to irregularities/fraud.

3.3. Administrative Arrangements

The management of tourism measures was undertaken by the Tourism Unit of DG XXIII. The Tourism Unit was staffed almost exclusively in the early years by non-statutory personnel; the former Head of Unit (A3), and a senior temporary agent (A4), formerly a Detached National Expert, were present in the Unit for some four years before they were removed from their posts in 1994 on disciplinary grounds and subsequently dismissed<sup>6</sup>. The Head of the Tourism Unit was responsible to a Director who had also responsibilities for SME policy. From May 1989 to October 1990 an outside consultant (Euro-Conseil) was engaged to help with the technical management of the European Year of Tourism.

While the Director General and the Director of the SME Task Force alone were authorised to sign credit commitments, the other Directors and an Assistant to the Director General had delegated authority to sign payment orders. Payments and commitments were processed by a small budget cell headed by a B-grade official directly responsible to the Director-General and to the Director of the SME Task Force which preceded the establishment of DG XXIII in 1989. In practice, some of the Assistants (to the Director General and to the Director of the Task Force) followed budget and financial matters including payment aspects. The overall administrative structure of DG XXIII continued largely in this form until May 1996 when a restructuring was carried out involving the creation of separate Units to deal with resources and control, and to advise on contracts. This was in large part a follow up to a comprehensive audit of the budgetary and financial procedures in place in DG XXIII, which was undertaken by DG XX in 1994.

4. Results of the Audit

4.1. Financial and Audit Information (as at 6 July 1998)

Out of 31.4 MECU in payments over the whole of the period (1990 - 1995), some 4.8 MECU represents the total amount of overpayment (see Annex 1, Annex 2 and Annex 5). A high proportion of overpayments are related to irregularities possibly linked to fraud:

2.9 MECU is related to 76 actions which are considered to be linked to irregularities/fraud and are currently the subject of criminal proceedings, or are considered to justify referral to national judicial authorities for further investigation and action.

0.4 MECU is accounted for by 58 projects which have been examined by UCLAF but where there are not sufficient elements to justify further investigation.

1.5 MECU represents sums which arise due to different factors, for example, a beneficiary exceeding expenditure on individual caption headings of the budget established for a project, cases where final project cost is less than the budgeted cost, overcharging (usually of personnel costs), failure to provide supporting documents, and incurring expenditure outside of the project period.

It should be stressed that the 2.9 MECU in overpayments in respect of actions possibly linked to irregularities/fraud is not necessarily the definitive amount of fraud-related overpayments. This figure could increase in function of the results of judicial investigations, especially as in some of the most serious cases the entire amount of the subvention paid may need to be reclaimed. In the case of projects (0.4 MECU) considered not to justify further fraud investigation, the Commission will verify that the financial reports can be accepted. It is likely that some beneficiaries who have received recovery orders will be able to provide adequate proofs for payment purposes, thereby reducing the overall level of overpayments.

4.2. Problematic Actions

In its special reports 4/92 and 3/96 the Court of Auditors has identified several tourism actions for particular comment. DG XX also, in the course of comprehensive audits carried out in 1994, indicated a number of potentially problematic actions which were considered likely to give rise to recovery orders. The actions concerned, as well as other measures taken in the period under review (788 in all) were examined in the course of the special audit exercise. Details of overpayments identified and recovery orders issued are to be found in the annexes.

Two principal areas of particular concern were highlighted by Parliament and the Court of Auditors in regard to the European Year of Tourism, namely the external consultant Euro-Conseil engaged to help manage the EYT, and national EYT actions in France.

As regards management of the Euro-Conseil contract, the overall amount of 769.744 ECU paid to the firm remains within the total amount of 775.833 ECU provided for in the contracts entered into by the Commission and notified to the CCAM.

The special audit has shown an overpayment to Euro-Conseil of 50.218 ECU, due to an excess in number of days claimed in respect of personnel costs. In addition, 175.000 ECU has been claimed by, and paid to Euro-Conseil in respect of services provided under the EYT, but where there is no clear proof of payment to suppliers. The precise amount of the overpayment will depend on legal advice in relation to any undischarged debts incurred by Euro-Conseil for services provided to the Commission.

In relation to recovery, the fact that Euro-Conseil went into voluntary liquidation in July 1992, with part of its share capital being disposed of to a separate enterprise, means that recovery could be very difficult at this stage.

As regards the selection process leading to the contract with Euro-Conseil, the absence of adequate checks on the financial situation of the firm prior to selection is open to criticism. In relation to the evaluation of the price and quality of the offer from Euro-Conseil, the approach adopted, namely, to give primary importance to the daily rate charged for personnel services rather than the total cost of the service offered could be questioned. A full analysis of the high ratings given for the quality of the offer is prevented by the absence of essential documentation. At a later stage, the conditions under which the initial contract was extended, notably as regards the significant increases in the rates of fee agreed, appear difficult to justify.

<sup>7</sup> While the actions under review cover the period from 1990 to 1995, it has been necessary also to reconstruct some data in respect of 1989 insofar as many financial commitments for the EYT were made in that year.

The fact that the Commission has not had access to all documentation in the Belgian investigation into allegations made against former senior officials, including relevant documentation which appears to have been removed from DG XXIII, prevents the Commission from arriving at a definitive position in this case. The Commission will transmit to the Belgian judicial authorities the reports relating to the EYT including Euro-Conseil and the actions associated with Euro-Conseil, in order to ensure that all relevant information will be integrated in the ongoing procedures.

In relation to the European Court of Auditors' findings of serious irregularities in EYT projects in France a comprehensive restructuring of the relevant papers, including Working Documents made available by the Court, has also been carried out. This should assist the Commission in taking further initiatives concerning these issues with the judicial authorities in France who, up to now, have not been convinced of the need to open fresh procedures or to integrate new material into ongoing procedures. The re-examination of the material available has confirmed the findings of the Court, as indicated in the special report (3/96) including active links between a former Detached National Expert (subsequently temporary agent) of the Tourism Unit and a senior official in the national administration. The conflict of interest arising from the involvement of the Expert with the National Committee charged with pre-selecting actions for Community financing and at the same time the exercise of his function in the Tourism Unit of vetting applications for subventions and making recommendations to his superiors, is evident.

The Commission takes the view that Member States would be financially responsible for observance of the financial conditions prescribed for certain EYT projects, and will proceed to request repayment of the amounts concerned in such cases.

4.3. Fraud Investigation

As regards irregularities linked to fraud (see Annex 3) the overall assessment of UCLAF is that the substantial fraud dimension in tourism actions can be linked to irregular activity on the part of one or other of the former personnel of the Tourism Unit who were dismissed. This irregular activity involved favouritism, corruption and misappropriation of funds, the imposition of favoured consultants on contractants, and the establishment of networks with family links to the former Head of Unit for the purpose of acquiring Commission contracts.

Chart 4: Cases under Fraud Investigation
Financial Analysis of 76 Cases concerned

The initial assessment of July 1997 had been that, in the case of 66 persons or organisations, there were indications of irregularities, possibly linked to fraud. Following a further assessment of 134 individual actions in total requiring a thorough analysis from the fraud perspective, there are 76 cases which are considered to justify further judicial examination: these include actions which form part of ongoing judicial proceedings in France and cases which are being referred by the Commission to national judicial authorities in France, Belgium, Greece, and, in a small number of cases, to Italy, Spain, and Luxembourg for inclusion in existing or in complementary proceedings.

The indications from some of the documentation relating to judicial proceedings, and available to the Commission, show that some 0.5 MECU was paid by beneficiaries in return for the granting of subventions.

Table 2: Fraud Investigation Statistics

Period	Assessed by UCLAF (N°)	Confirmed Fraud Link	Overpayment (MECU)	RO issued (MECU)	Recovered (MECU)
89-90 (EYT)	67	33	1.22	1.08	0.05
91-92	36	25	1.28	1.20	0.00
93-95 (IAP)	31	18	0.44	0.40	0.08
Total	134	76	2.94	2.68	0.13

In the course of one of several control visits carried out in the course of the special audit exercise, it has come to notice that a second former Detached National Expert in the Tourism Unit during the EYT, was involved in the project selection process at national level, and at the same time responsible for selection and monitoring of the same projects at Community level. The cases involved are under investigation.

5. Follow-up Action

There are two major areas for further work, namely

- pursuance, and execution where possible, of recovery orders; this includes also the examination of the arguments made by former beneficiaries who contest the Commission's claims for reimbursement;
- referral of cases to national authorities for inclusion in existing or complementary judicial proceedings or investigations; this will involve servicing existing and future legal processes in order to defend the interests of the Commission.

This is apart from possible disciplinary measures in the light of the results of judicial investigations.

5.1. Recovery of Overpayments

Out of 236 individual cases of overpayments, 193 recovery orders have already been issued for an amount of 3.1 MECU; a further 24 recovery orders for a total amount of 1.3 MECU have been prepared and are at various stages of internal procedures. The remaining 19 cases, for an amount of 0.4 MECU, are an amalgam of different situations, for example, cases where beneficiaries have been asked to clarify particular issues, where former beneficiaries are known not to exist, or where further investigation is necessary. Sixty eight (68) beneficiaries have repaid a total of 0.562 MECU.

Table 3: Recovery Order Statistics

Period	ROs Issued (N°/MECU)		Amounts Recovered (N°/MECU)		ROs prepared for Issue <sup>8</sup> (N°/MECU)
	N°	MECU	N°	MECU	N°	MECU
89-90 (EYT)	109	0.75	50	0.19	19	0.94
91-92	38	1.42	5	0.11	1	0.09
93-95 (TAP)	46	0.94	13	0.26	4	0.24
Total	193	3.11	68	0.56	24	1.27

At this stage recovery orders have already issued or have been prepared for issue in almost all cases in which overpayments have been identified. It is to be noted that about two thirds of outstanding repayments concern cases which are considered to involve irregularities linked to fraud. Accordingly, unless claims for compensation by the Commission can be successfully pursued in ongoing and future legal proceedings in Member States, the prospects for recovery of the major part of overpayments are slim.

Many former beneficiaries are resisting repayment using the argument that the Commission, when making final payments should have checked out their claims more thoroughly, and that the Commission's action in making final payment amounted to acceptance of the terms, including the financial report, on which projects were concluded. Many claim also that some of the budget rules now being applied were not known by them or explained to them at the time, and that the Commission's purely budget-based approach takes no account of the quality of the work done.

Some claims for recovery linked to absence of documentary proofs of expenditure may be difficult to sustain due to lapse of time; in many cases it is upwards of 8 years since the projects were carried out, while beneficiaries are required to retain documents for 5 years only. Following a request of the Court of Auditors the Commission did, however, request 447 beneficiaries in 1996 to retain documentation in anticipation of further enquiries. There is also the problem of the vagueness of some of the contracts involved, the insubstantial and transitory status of many of the former beneficiaries, and the fact that in some Member States the claims may be statute barred.

Chart 5: Overpayments and Follow-up
As Percentage of Total Number of Overpayments Identified

The Commission has not accepted general arguments from beneficiaries in relation to recovery orders. However, in the case of execution of recovery orders every case must be considered on its merits and the final decision must take into account both the terms of the contractual agreement with the beneficiary, and the cost-effectiveness of further legal action.

Table 4: Cumulative Overpayments (non-fraud) by Size Category

≤ (ECU)	1.000	5.000	10.000	20.000	30.000	50.000	100.000
No. of cases	16	44	81	103	115	120	122
Total Value	7.458	79.436	334.403	645.343	938.241	1.142.616	1.301.811

Table 4 gives an indication of the number and value of outstanding overpayments, not linked to fraud, by size category. It is to be noted that one third of the cases involved are for amounts of not more than 5.000 ECU; two thirds are for amounts not greater than 10.000 ECU, but account for only 25% of total overpayments in value terms. No individual overpayment in the non-fraud category is in excess of 100.000 ECU. Recovery orders have been issued for amounts as low as 116 ECU.

5.2. Treatment of Fraud-related Cases

There are a number of elements which are likely to jeopardise a satisfactory outcome to the fraud aspects; among these are the slowness of the judicial procedures, non-cooperation between some authorities, and reluctance to open penal investigations or to integrate new elements into existing procedures.

The Commission will now proceed to notify the competent authorities in the Member States in which proceedings have been opened namely Belgium, France and Greece, of the additional elements which have become available as a result of this exercise and which should permit them to be integrated into existing or complementary procedures.

It will be necessary also to invite the authorities in Italy, Spain, and Luxembourg to investigate a limited number of actions in which there are indications of possible fraud. As the investigations proceed, the Commission will follow the actions undertaken in the Member States concerned in order to obtain reparation of the financial prejudice suffered by the Community.

Chart 6: Relative Importance of Fraud and Overpayments
As Percentage of Number of Actions

It is not possible to give a reliable indication as to when judicial proceedings and investigations in Member States will have terminated.

5.3. Administrative Accountability

As the Parliament in its Resolutions<sup>9</sup> has stressed the issue of administrative accountability, the Commission considers that the failings of the Service immediately concerned (DG XXIII) should be assessed in the light of the following elements:

- During most of the period reviewed, lasting for more than 4 years, two senior members of the staff of the Tourism Unit, subsequently dismissed<sup>10</sup> by the Commission, effectively controlled the conception, selection, monitoring and clearance for payment, of the great majority of tourism actions. There was no effective counterweight to their presence and influence. Prior to discovery of his involvement in irregularities, the temporary agent concerned enjoyed a trusted position in DG XXIII, had been highly commended on his work, and had the clear confidence of his superiors. He was closely involved in the preparation of the Commission's reply to the Court of Auditor's special report 4/92. The other staff of the Tourism Unit consisted in large part of non-statutory personnel on short-term contracts who were in a weak position to question their superiors; nevertheless, the breakthrough in terms of identifying the pattern of external and internal irregularities had its origin in the initiative in late 1993 of DG XXIII personnel, leading to an extensive series of control visits and identification of problematic actions by DG XX. The fact that this initiative did take place, and that disciplinary measures were correctly pursued by the Services, shows that the Commission acted capably and in a coordinated manner once the problems became evident. In the case of the disciplinary action taken the Court of First Instance has upheld the decision of the Commission by rejecting the claim of wrongful dismissal by the ex-Head of the Tourism Unit.

- Preparation and control of payments during the most problematic period was exercised by comparatively junior officials who had primary responsibility for preparing and processing claims for payment in DG XXIII. Payments in many cases were made without adequate control and supervision. There are indications that what was seen as the imperative need to spend the full amounts provided in the annual budget was an important contributory factor in the pressure to make payments; for example, in 1990 this was the factor which motivated DG XXIII to make some payments in the absence of final reports from beneficiaries.
- Throughout the period under review, the overall level of administration and management appears to have been poor; apart from failure to fully control payments, the files were badly maintained and incomplete, especially in respect of the European Year of Tourism; important papers were often undated and copies unsigned; there was no effective system for the control of incoming and outgoing correspondence; financial commitments and notifications of grant approval were often given very late, and occasionally after events had taken place; also incorrect budgetary imputations occurred during the EYT. The object, as described in several calls for proposals and public tenders, was not sufficiently precise, and ongoing monitoring and evaluation of projects in respect of their technical and financial content was often manipulated and/or seriously deficient.
- Decisions taken in important individual cases are also open to criticism. This includes the selection process and the management of the contract arrangements with Euro-Conseil, notably the financial terms on which the initial contract was extended. The strained relations between the ex-Head of the Tourism Unit with his Director at the time, coupled with the huge volume of actions (over 400) undertaken in the EYT, are likely to have been important contributory factors in the inability of DG XXIII to exercise closer supervision on important aspects of the EYT. In other cases, specifically identified by the Court in its 1992 and 1996 special reports, the criticisms made of the Services in relation to granting subventions and management of projects are, with few exceptions, soundly based.
- It is difficult to establish the extent to which there was an awareness of irregularities linked to possible fraud, before the first action taken by DG XXIII late in 1993. As far back as 1989 there was serious doubt in Parliament, as evidenced by Questions put down in the Parliament by Mr. Niall Andrews, but subsequently withdrawn, about the fitness of Euro-Conseil to undertake the tasks required under the EYT. There is also an instance in late 1989 when the French authorities complained that representatives of Euro-Conseil had made an irregular approach to a regional tourism organisation offering, in return for remuneration, to help in the preparation of an application to the Commission for funding.

- There is also the specific instance (June 1992) raised by the Court of Auditors in which the director of a tourism organisation copied to DG XXIII a letter which had been sent to his members in relation to alleged support by the former Head of the Tourism Unit for the selection of a firm (DEMETER), for a major contract for promotion of Europe as a tourist destination. In this case there is substance in the explanation given in reply to the Court of Auditors, namely (i) doubts about the credibility of the complaint, as the organisation concerned had been receiving substantial subsidies from the Commission, and was effectively a competitor of DEMETER, and (ii) the willingness of important parts of the industry to be associated with the DEMETER proposal. Subsequent events have shown that the action in question was surrounded by irregularities linked to fraud, a fact which goes to highlight the importance of following up such indications irrespective of their origin. This is illustrated by a more recent experience in the field of tourism where external information was acted upon by DG XXIII leading to the establishment of a recovery order and a fraud investigation.
- The response given to criticisms in the Court of Auditors' special report 4/92 did not deal with the fundamental problem. This may have been due to lack of full information by senior officials, coupled with a belief, which may have been shared by the Court at the time, that the problem was not one of fraud. Subsequent investigation in the course of the special audit exercise has shown that the findings of report 4/92 were solidly based.

As regards administrative sanctions the Commission is willing to initiate disciplinary measures where evidence of breach of the obligations of the Staff Regulations is available, and in full respect of the provisions laid down. The Commission recalls to Parliament and to the Court of Auditors the disciplinary action already taken against former personnel of the Tourism Unit leading to their dismissal.

Before drawing final conclusions on all aspects, the findings of the judicial authorities in Belgium whose request to have lifted the immunity of former senior officials, and of a serving official, was granted by the Commission in November 1997, should be awaited.

6. Perspectives for Financial Management

Since coming into office in January 1995 the present Commission has taken decisive measures to improve financial and resources management in its Services. A first comprehensive initiative, SEM 2000, introduced in 1995 concentrated on measures to encourage sound and efficient management. This was followed in 1997 by MAP 2000, an initiative to modernise administration and personnel policy, work at the level of Directors General to improve various aspects of management, and the initiative "Designing the Commission of tomorrow" involving a thorough review of the structure and activities of the Commission Services. In addition, specific measures have been taken whenever persistent weaknesses are identified. One recent example is the management of contracts, where the Commission has decided to establish a Unit, entrusted with the task of establishing a register of contractors and contracts, of streamlining the Commission's contract policy, and providing a help desk for the Services. Together, these initiatives add up to a comprehensive management reform. Two of these reforms are of particular relevance to the findings of the special audit which confirmed the existence of structural weaknesses in DG XXIII's financial management, both in relation to its organisation and its limited and poorly allocated human resources.

The main organisational weakness resulted from an insufficient separation of functions. During the period covered by the report DG XXIII (like many other DGs at that time) did not have a separate Unit for finance management which was independent of the operational structure and which was responsible for systematically monitoring the application of sound financial management principles.

This weakness was addressed by one of the central recommendations of the SEM 2000 initiative under which all the Commission's Services were invited to create finance and resources structures separate from the functions of policy and programme management. The implementation of this recommendation was reviewed last year. The report confirms that considerable progress has been made in establishing the separate structures recommended by SEM 2000, although further effort is necessary to ensure that the new financial structure fully integrates the internal control function envisaged. As indicated already in a Working Document given to the Committee on Budgetary Control earlier this year DG XXIII is to the forefront of this process.

The second area of weakness identified in this audit is that neither general nor sectoral rules existed for the award and monitoring of these grants. A study by the Commission's Inspectorate General revealed that this was not unique to DG XXIII. Overall grants of about 1 BECU, spread over many Commission departments, have not been subject to specific rules.

In the meantime DG XXIII has filled this gap by defining strict rules for the award of its subsidies including full evaluation of actions prior to payment. Recognising that DG-specific award and monitoring procedures are not necessarily the ideal solution from the point of view both of transparency and efficiency, the Commission has therefore established a high-level working group to propose generally applicable standards. An interim report of the Group was made available in November, and the final report will be adopted by the Commission shortly. To facilitate application of the new procedures a user-oriented Vademecum is being made available to all Services. The core principles which will have to be respected are extensive ex ante publicity, competitive award procedures, collective assessment of proposals and ex post publicity of the awarded grant. Grants may only be awarded outside a specific call for proposals if they concern pilot projects in the context of a published programme, and will have to be set out separately in the ex post publication of the awarded grants.

Some of the reforms proposed in the SEM 2000 initiative required legislative changes to the EU's Financial Regulation. These were included in the 7th train of amendments on which the Council has recently adopted a common position.

As recommended in the opinion of the Court of Auditors on the 7th train proposals, the Commission is about to initiate a comprehensive review of the Financial Regulation. A discussion document, which sets out the main analysis and the provisional views of the Commission's Services, will be presented shortly. It should provide the basis for a thorough inter-institutional debate in the second half of 1998, to enable the Commission to bring forward a formal proposal for revising the Regulation in the first half of 1999.

7. Concluding Remarks

The problems which have arisen in DG XXIII have their origin in a combination of factors, namely, important weaknesses in the approach to Community policy on tourism, including the absence of clear and consistent objectives; inadequate organisational structures and personnel resources in DG XXIII; fraud and corruption; conflict of interest in the decision-making and advisory process; inadequate management and control of projects, and poor overall supervision. There were also many cases of poor execution of projects by beneficiaries, including lack of attention to financial requirements, and in some cases also an openness to collaborate in what was a corrupt and barren exercise in terms of developing actions which would be of genuine value to tourism. Indeed, an unfortunate side effect of the problems in the administration of tourism actions has been that the prospects of developing policies which would enable tourism to make an even greater contribution to major Community policies such as employment, and the environment, has been seriously damaged.

Some of the most serious problems in relation to tourism occurred upwards of a decade ago, a time when project selection and management both in its financial and technical aspects was a great deal less strict than it is today. There have been significant improvements in management and financial control of Community-funded actions in the meantime, with new structures and procedures having been introduced both in DG XXIII and elsewhere in the Services. The SEM 2000 structures have provided a necessary counter-weight to the operational management Services whose tendency is to push ahead as quickly as possible with the programs and actions approved by the Commission without always paying sufficient attention to financial management considerations. This process of administrative reform is an ongoing one which will take several more years.

As regards the present exercise, every effort has been made to establish a balanced view of the issues examined. It is to be expected that the older files, especially those related to the European Year of Tourism, carry a risk that some aspects may not have come to notice. And the scope for conflict of interest in the subventions system, and the passage of time which has inevitably made reconstruction of events very difficult, are factors which argue for prudence in the conclusions. The fact that full information on all the elements in the Belgian judicial procedure is not available to the Commission, and that new information may yet emerge from the procedures under way in France, and in the investigation being conducted in Greece, adds to the uncertainty.

On the other hand a huge volume of painstaking investigation has been undertaken, solid results have been achieved, and all indications of irregularity possibly linked to fraud have been reported to UCLAF for their assessment and follow-up required. In addition, the efforts made to identify and to recover overpayments are substantial and the special audit exercise has achieved its objective. The overall effort in terms of investigation of tourism actions is estimated to have accounted for over 2 MECU in administrative costs and further costs will be incurred in dealing with the substantial work remaining in relation to recovery of overpayments and in servicing judicial processes. This work will be carried out through normal structures and procedures within the Commission and in the Member States. Parliament and the Court of Auditors will be regularly informed of developments.

Field name	Comments
Amount committed	All amounts in ECU. All information is based on data provided by DG XIX.
Amount paid	All amounts in ECU. All information is based on data provided by DG XIX (CUC/SINCOM). As in a small number of cases commitments/payments were made in national currencies amounts actually paid (converted to ECU) may exceed amounts committed (converted to ECU) in a number of cases.
Budget line	Budget line numbers are based on SINCOM in a simplified form showing the budget line of the initial year of commitment.
Commitment	Commitment numbers are based on SINCOM in a simplified form, showing only the year of initial commitment. All extensions used for identifying individual beneficiaries within global commitments are derived from specifications of the local DG XXIII accounting system CHEOPS.
EYT reference	The reference given indicates the character of an individual action during the European Year of Tourism (EYT): "Pan" stands for pan-European EYT-projects, "Nat" stands for national EYT-projects; all other EYT actions are classified as "EYT" followed by a short indication, e.g. "info" for information and promotion. The Category "1989/1990" is used for not explicitly EYT related actions but which were carried out in parallel to the EYT.
Follow-up / Member State	The country code indicates the Member State in which (i) the case is already part of an ongoing investigation (ii) the case is to be included in an ongoing investigation (iii) the case will be brought to the attention of the judicial authorities for investigation.
Investigation status	The current status of UCLAF's examination of a particular action.
Organisation	All organisations are listed under their most recent known name. Commonly used abbreviations are mentioned before the name of organisation.
Overpayment identified	The amount shown indicates the latest position established following financial audit, review during recovery preparation or adjustment during recovery process.
Postal code / City	All address details reflect the most recent information available about the present location of the organisation.
Project type	There is some overlap in the assignment of projects to distinct categories, for example an "environment" project can have a significant "cultural" dimension.

RO prepared	Tick indicates that Recovery Order (RO) is being processed for the amount of overpayment identified.
RO issued reference	Individual Recovery Order (RO); number as assigned by DG XIX after issue; the two first digits indicate the year of issue.
Still outstanding	The value shown indicates the Commission's outstanding net claim.
Type aid approved	The category "subvention" describes the selection of co-financed actions on a competitive basis (usually through Calls for Proposals) as opposed to "ad-hoc subventions" where there is no competition. The category "contract" stands for services purchased by the Commission.
UCLAF referral	Cases already known to UCLAF or brought to the attention of UCLAF for examination in relation to suspected irregularities linked to fraud.
