Report of the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia

INTRODUCTION

1. The Secretary-General reported to the Security Council on 8 July 1993 on the activities of the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia (S/26066). The present report contains information on the latest efforts of the Co-Chairmen to stop the conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina, as well as on other activities of the Conference.

I. BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

2. The Co-Chairmen have continued their search for a negotiated settlement to the conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina. They have maintained contacts with the different sides to the conflict, seeking to serve as a channel of communication and to clarify ideas and proposals advanced by the parties during the discussions.

3. During their contacts with President Izetbegovic, Mr. Boban and Mr. Karadzic, as well as in related contacts with Presidents Milosevic, Bulatovic and Tudjman, the Co-Chairmen impressed upon them the urgency of reconvening peace talks to strive for a negotiated and durable solution. As part of this process, the Co-Chairmen arranged for a meeting, held in Geneva on Saturday, 17 July 1993, between President Milosevic and President Tudjman.

4. Having regard to developments on the ground, especially the deteriorating humanitarian situation and the persistence of conflict, the Co-Chairmen invited the Bosnian sides, together with Presidents Milosevic, Bulatovic and Tudjman, to come to Geneva for talks on Friday, 23 July 1993. The Co-Chairmen also appealed to the Bosnian leaders to order their forces to refrain from further hostilities and to help to alleviate the humanitarian situation, especially by assisting in the restoration of utilities in Sarajevo and in allowing access for humanitarian convoys.

5. Owing to the hostilities then taking place around Sarajevo, President Izetbegovic requested, and the Co-Chairmen agreed to, a postponement of the talks from Friday, 23 July to Sunday, 25 July 1993. For similar reasons, a further deferral was made to Tuesday, 27 July, when all sides came to Geneva for peace talks. Seven other members of the Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina also attended, as did Presidents Milosevic, Bulatovic and Tudjman. Furthermore, President Izetbegovic brought with him five leaders of political parties, with whom the Co-Chairmen met and held discussions.

6. The peace talks began on 27 July and were continuing as at 2 August 1993. The discussions concentrated on steps to secure a cease-fire and on ways and means of dealing with humanitarian issues; future constitutional arrangements; and the allocation of territory to the constituent entities.

A. Cessation of hostilities and humanitarian issues

7. Following discussions on 27, 28 and 29 July 1993, President Izetbegovic, Mr. Karadzic and Mr. Boban agreed to issue immediate directives to their military commanders to implement a full cessation of hostilities. They further agreed that, in order to reinforce that directive, the commanders of the three military forces should meet immediately at Sarajevo Airport under the chairmanship of the United Nations. Furthermore, the commanders should meet each day while the talks continued so as to discuss the causes of any conflict and to correct the situation. The commanders were also requested to discuss whether any modifications were needed to the military agreements contained in the Vance-Owen peace plan (see S/25479, annex IV) that all three sides have reaffirmed.

8. The military commanders of the three sides met at Sarajevo Airport on 30 July 1993 under the auspices of the Force Commander of the United Nations Protection Force (UNPROFOR). At the end of their meeting that day, they signed an agreement providing that all forces of the three parties cease firing and freeze all military activities, including military movements, deployment of forces and establishment of fortifications. The agreement also provides for permitting free passage for UNPROFOR convoys and convoy escorts and free passage for humanitarian aid convoys. The text of the agreement signed is reproduced in appendix I to the present report.

B. Constitutional Agreement

9. During the discussions on constitutional issues, all sides submitted working papers, which were distributed and discussed. Taking these submissions into account and having regard to the issues raised in the discussions, a consolidated working paper was discussed and examined article by article, with all sides participating in an open and constructive manner.

10. After intensive discussion on a number of drafts submitted by the parties, with amendments submitted by all three parties, they agreed on 30 July to a Constitutional Agreement for a Union of Republics of Bosnia and Herzegovina to form part of an overall peace settlement. The text of the Constitutional Agreement is reproduced in appendix II to the present report.

C. Access Authority

11. The Co-Chairmen stressed the vital importance of ensuring freedom of movement throughout the country. They proposed establishing an Access Authority, as foreseen under the Vance-Owen peace plan, with throughways to ensure access in sensitive areas of the country after UNPROFOR withdraws. They also stressed that the "blue route" concept in the Agreement for Peace in the Vance-Owen peace plan would also be maintained and that would ensure, within a few days, access through Sarajevo city and the surrounding areas out to key cities.

12. The railway and road from Ploce to Doboï which, after it crosses the Croatian border, follows the route Mostar-Jablanica-Sarajevo-Zenica-Doboï, criss-crosses all three of the constituent republics. For this reason, the Co-Chairmen strongly felt that it should be run by the Access Authority. There would be guaranteed road access along the designated "blue routes" (Sarajevo-Ilidza-Hadzici-Tarcin-Jablanica-Mostar, Sarajevo-Rajlovac-Ilijas-Visoko-Zenica, Sarajevo-Bentbasa-Mokro-Sokolac-Vlasenica-Zvornik) as soon as UNPROFOR started to implement the military plan. This time interval while UNPROFOR was present in the country would allow a number of bypass roads to be constructed to give guaranteed access within the territory of each constituent republic.

D. The map

13. The Co-Chairmen's detailed discussions on the map started on 21 July 1993. They are determined to ensure that the suggestion made during their earlier clarification talks that any Muslim-majority republic should have at least 30 per cent of the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina and have guaranteed access to the Sava river and to the sea at Ploce should be fulfilled.

14. The discussions on the map are continuing.

II. CROATIA

15. Following the military actions of the Croatian armed forces in January 1993, the Security Council, by its resolution 802 (1993), ordered, among other things, that Croatian government forces be withdrawn from the areas within or adjacent to the United Nations protected areas. Since then, successive rounds of discussions have been organized within the framework of the International Conference, as well as under the auspices of UNPROFOR, to bring about compliance with Security Council resolution 802 (1993).

16. On 15-16 July 1993, an agreement relevant to the implementation of that resolution was signed by Serb local authorities and by representatives of the Croatian Government. The Agreement followed contacts that the Co-Chairmen had had earlier with President Milosevic and President Tudjman, followed by discussions held in Zagreb and Erdut. The Agreement of 15-16 July provided that there would be no Croatian armed forces or police in the areas specified in the Agreement after 31 July 1993. UNPROFOR would move into those areas. In the villages of Islam Grcki, Smokovic and Kasic, Serb police together with United Nations Civilian Police (UNCIVPOL) would be present. With the withdrawal of the Croatian armed forces and police, according to the first paragraph of the Agreement, Maslenica Bridge, Zemunik Airport and Peruca Dam would be under the exclusive control of UNPROFOR. The building of a pontoon bridge could proceed after the signature of the agreement by both sides. Both sides agreed to intensify their efforts to reach a negotiated solution to all problems existing between them, starting with a cease-fire agreement to be negotiated by UNPROFOR. The text of the Agreement is set out in appendix III to the present report.

17. Following the signature of the Agreement, efforts continued to get the two sides to sign a cease-fire agreement. On 20 July 1993, Croatian and Serb delegations met in Vienna in a plenary session and reviewed a draft cease-fire agreement that had been produced by UNPROFOR. Initially the talks went well, with few significant differences between the parties. A military working group was established to examine in detail the areas involved and the exact lines of withdrawal. However, after both sides consulted their authorities, it emerged that the Croatian Government considered that the cease-fire agreement was not linked to the agreement of 15-16 July, while the Serbs insisted that the Croatian forces should withdraw in accordance with that agreement before they would sign any global cease-fire. Despite the best efforts of the negotiators, it proved impossible to find a formula to reconcile these positions, and on 22 July the talks were adjourned until further notice.

18. Subsequently, on 23 July 1993 the Croatian authorities signed a unilateral undertaking to the agreement of 15-16 July in order for UNPROFOR units to start deploying in the Zemunik/Maslenica area not later than 0900 hours on 26 July. UNPROFOR forces would assume control of the whole area by no later than 31 July. The other areas would be taken over by UNPROFOR after the signing of a formal cease-fire agreement. The undertaking further provided that, in the villages mentioned in the Agreement of 15-16 July, UNCIVPOL would be present together with five Serb policemen in each village, armed with side-arms only. Those policemen would be allowed to cross the present confrontation line and enter the villages on 1 August. The text of the undertaking is set out in appendix IV to the present report. The Serb local authorities rejected the undertaking, as not falling within the scope of the agreement of 15-16 July.

19. The crux of the problem has been that the Croatian Government has not yet withdrawn from the areas from which they promised to withdraw in the Agreement of 15-16 July, while the Serbs repeatedly warned that, unless the Agreement is complied with by 31 July, they would feel free to shell the Maslenica Bridge and surrounding areas.

20. Numerous contacts have been made with the Croatian authorities in Zagreb and the Co-Chairmen of the International Conference have had discussions on the matter with President Tudjman.

21. On 25 July the Deputy Force Commander of UNPROFOR obtained an undertaking from the Serb leadership to refrain from all armed hostilities until 31 July 1993, in order to allow the Croatian armed forces and police to withdraw from the areas specified in the Agreement of 15-16 July. The text of the undertaking is set out in appendix V to the present report.

22. Repeated efforts to get the Croatian authorities to comply with the 15-16 July Agreement were unsuccessful and the Serbs continued to indicate that they would feel free to resume armed hostilities after 31 July.

23. On 30 July 1993, Croatian Defence Minister Susak informed the Deputy Force Commander of UNPROFOR as follows:

(a) United Nations military observers can go into all areas specified in the Agreement of 15-16 July;

(b) Armed troops can deploy into the area of the "blue zones", i.e. Maslenica Bridge, Zemunik Airport and Serbian villages;

(c) Discussions can continue after 31 July.

24. The Serb leadership considers that none of these proposals complied with the Agreement of 15-16 July.

25. The Security Council considered this situation on 30 July 1993. Having heard with deep concern a report from the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Former Yugoslavia, the Security Council demanded that the Croatian forces withdraw forthwith in conformity with the agreement of 15-16 July and that they permit the immediate deployment of UNPROFOR. The Council also demanded that the Krajina Serb forces refrain from entering the area. The Council called for maximum restraint from all the parties, including the observance of a cease-fire. The Council warned of the serious consequences of any failure to implement the Agreement of 15-16 July.

26. Following the issuance of the statement, the Co-Chairmen have been in contact with the parties and with others in a position to influence the situation so as to promote compliance with the decisions of the Security Council.

III. HUMANITARIAN ISSUES

27. Since the last report of the Secretary-General, Mrs. Sadako Ogata, United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and Chairperson of the Humanitarian Issues Working Group, has maintained close contact with Governments of the region and with the Bosnian parties, through her Special Envoy and Chiefs of Missions. On 14 July 1993 she visited Sarajevo to express support to its besieged population and to re-emphasize to President Izetbegovic her commitment to continue humanitarian operations in Bosnia and Herzegovina, where possible.

28. On 16 July 1993, Mrs. Ogata chaired a meeting of the Humanitarian Issues Working Group in Geneva, attended by senior representatives of all Governments of the region, of a large number of interested States, and of several intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations. The meeting was addressed by Mrs. Ogata, Mr. Stoltenberg, Lord Owen, Mr. Nakajima of the World Health Organization (WHO), President Sommaruga of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and by senior representatives of the World Food Programme (WFP) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). Mrs. Ogata informed the meeting of the serious obstacles affecting the international relief effort, including the ongoing denial and obstruction of humanitarian access in many areas of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and attacks on and harassment of relief staff. She highlighted the intensification of war and persecution and the dire conditions of the population of Sarajevo, and of those populations trapped in many other areas, such as Srebrenica and Mostar and in central Bosnia. Warning that, under these conditions a humanitarian catastrophe would be unavoidable during the coming winter months, she called on all Bosnian parties to respect the humanitarian and impartial nature of the international relief effort and to ensure unimpeded and safe access.

29. A further serious obstacle Mrs. Ogata mentioned was the shortfall in funding for all United Nations agencies participating in the relief effort. The shortfall had already resulted in cutbacks in various support programmes, including in Croatia and Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), which were facing substantial and rising social and economic difficulties. Mrs. Ogata emphasized the need for continuous and increased burden-sharing with all regional countries of asylum, while calling on these and other States to continue to provide admission and proper treatment, under safe conditions, to persons in need of protection irrespective of their ethnic or religious origin.

30. Expressing concern about the difficulties faced by UNPROFOR and by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and other humanitarian organizations, the meeting reaffirmed its commitment to the international relief effort in the entire region. Many delegations expressed their willingness to participate in, or otherwise support, a UNHCR-proposed consortium to provide shelter to the increasing number of displaced persons, particularly in central Bosnia, and to undertake essential infrastructural repairs, where feasible. The continuing need to provide temporary protection was recognized, as well as the need to ease the burden of refugee-receiving States in the region. Financial pledges were made, totalling US$ 125 million, of which $63 million were for UNHCR's programme for the former Yugoslavia. While these pledges are encouraging, they will unfortunately not permit UNHCR and other humanitarian organizations to sustain the international relief effort for former Yugoslavia beyond October 1993. Moreover, while the number of people dependent on external assistance is rising daily, parties to the conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina are rendering it increasingly difficult to reach the victims and to ease their plight.

IV. ARBITRATION COMMISSION

31. As the Secretary-General reported earlier to the Security Council (see S/25708, para. 19), the Working Group on Succession Issues had submitted to the Arbitration Commission six legal questions for its opinion. On 16 July 1993, the Arbitration Commission issued three advisory opinions, giving its views on four of the questions. These opinions are reproduced in appendix VI to the present report. The Commission also indicated that it would give responses relating to the other two questions shortly.

V. CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS

32. During the latest round of peace talks on Bosnia and Herzegovina, unprecedented positive steps have been registered.

(a) The leadership of the three sides negotiated for the first time intensively, cordially and in a constructive manner for seven days continuously, and continues to do so;

(b) All three sides agreed to a constitutional framework for Bosnia and Herzegovina on 30 July;

(c) The political leadership of the three sides directed their military commanders to observe a cease-fire and an agreement to that effect was signed by the military commanders on 30 July;

(d) Fighting in Bosnia and Herzegovina has been decreasing greatly while the talks are on;

(e) Electricity and water are again available in Sarajevo, although there are still technical problems. The gas pipeline has now been turned on by the Hungarian authorities;

(f) Humanitarian convoys are getting through. The current success rate is 80 per cent;

(g) The delimitation of constituent parts of the State of Bosnia and Herzegovina has been taking shape and every effort is being made to see to it that the areas allocated to the Muslim-majority Republic, which contain most of the wealth and the industrial base of the country, should not be less than 30 per cent of the overall territory.

Serbian Republic of Krajina

1. In order to implement paragraph 1 of the Erdut agreement, i.e. to enable the unobstructed withdrawal of Croatian forces from the area indicated in the map annexed to the Erdut agreement, the Serbian Army of Krajina has ceased all armed hostilities since 18 July 1993. We strongly commit ourselves to refrain from all armed hostilities until 31 July 1993.
2. For the purpose of controlling the cessation of armed hostilities in this period, we are inviting the UNPROFOR Command to deploy urgently its forces and observers along the whole of the confrontation line, as has been agreed between the Serbian Army of Krajina and UNPROFOR.
3. We comply with UNPROFOR's request that, in compliance with the spirit of the Erdut agreement, their forces be deployed in the areas from which the Croatian forces will withdraw, on condition that we are previously given assurance by the UNPROFOR Command that they will withdraw from these areas until 2400 hours on 31 July 1993 if until then the Croatian side does not fully implement the agreement of 15 and 16 July 1993; in other words, if the Croatian side does not withdraw from all the areas indicated on the map annexed to the Erdut agreement.
4. We accept UNPROFOR's obligation to inform us on time on the plan of deployment of UNPROFOR forces in the specified areas.
5. We express our readiness to agree with the other side on the lasting cease-fire and restoration of peace after the Erdut agreement has been implemented.

Enclosure

A. OPINION NO. 11

On 20 April 1993, the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia referred six questions to the Chairman of the Arbitration Commission, seeking the Commission's opinion.

Question No. 2 was:

"On what date(s) did State succession occur for the various States that have emerged from the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia?"

On 12 May 1993, the co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference transmitted to the Chairman of the Commission a declaration by the Government of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia raising a number of objections to the reference to the Commission. The members of the Commission unanimously adopted a document reacting to the assertions made by the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia; this was addressed to the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference on 26 May 1993. None of the States parties to the proceedings has contested the Commission's right to answer questions referred to it.

The Commission has taken cognizance of the memorandum, observations and other materials communicated by the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Republic of Croatia, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the Republic of Slovenia, which have been passed on to all the successor States of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. The Federal Republic of Yugoslavia has submitted no memorandum or observations on the questions referred.

1. In accordance with the generally accepted definition contained in article 2 of the 1978 and 1983 Vienna Conventions on the Succession of States, "date of the succession of States" means the date upon which the successor State replaced the predecessor State in the responsibility for the international relations of the territory to which the succession of States relates".

2. In the case in point there is a particular problem arising from the circumstances in which State succession occurred:

First, the predecessor State, the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, has ceased to exist and, as the Commission found in its opinion No. 9, none of the successor States can claim to be the sole continuing State.

Second, the demise of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, unlike that of other recently dissolved States (USSR, Czechoslovakia), resulted not from an agreement between the parties but from a process of disintegration that lasted some time, starting, in the Commission's view, on 29 November 1991, when the Commission issued opinion No. 1, and ending on 4 July 1992, when it issued opinion No. 8.

3. However, while these circumstances need to be taken into account in determining the legal arrangements applying to State succession (see arts. 18, 31 and 41 of the Vienna Convention of 8 April 1978 on Succession of States in respect of State Property, Archives and Debts), they are immaterial in determining the date of State succession, which, as the Commission indicated in paragraph 1 above, is the date upon which each successor State replaced the predecessor State. Since, in the case in point, the successor States of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia are new States, and since they became independent on different dates, the relevant date is, for each of them, that on which they became States.

As the Commission indicated in opinion No. 1, this is a question of fact that is to be assessed in each case in the light of the circumstances in which each of the States concerned was created.

4. The issue is the same as regards the Republics of Croatia and Slovenia, both of which declared their independence on 25 June 1991 and suspended their declarations of independence for three months on 7 July 1991, as provided by the Brioni declaration. In accordance with the declaration, the suspension ceased to have effect on 8 October 1991. Only then did these two Republics definitively break all links with the organs of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and become sovereign States in international law. For them, then, 8 October 1991 is the date of State succession.

5. Macedonia asserted its right to independence on 25 January 1991, but it did not declare its independence until after the referendum held on 8 September 1991, the consequences of which were drawn in the Constitution adopted on 17 November 1991, effective on the same day. That is the date on which the Republic of Macedonia became a sovereign State, having no institutional link with the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. So 17 November 1991 is the date of State succession as regards Macedonia.

6. In opinion No. 4, issued on 11 January 1991, the Arbitration Commission came to the view that "the will of the peoples of Bosnia-Herzegovina to constitute the Socialist Republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina as a sovereign and independent State [could] not be held to have been fully established". Since then, in a referendum held on 29 February and 1 March 1992, the majority of the people of the Republic have expressed themselves in favour of a sovereign and independent Bosnia. The result of the referendum was officially promulgated on 6 March, and since that date, notwithstanding the dramatic events that have occurred in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the constitutional authorities of the Republic have acted like those of a sovereign State in order to maintain its territorial integrity and their full and exclusive powers. So 6 March 1992 must be considered the date on which Bosnia and Herzegovina succeeded the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

7. There are particular problems in determining the date of State succession in respect of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia because that State considers itself to be the continuation of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia rather than a successor State.

As has been affirmed by all international agencies which have had to state their views on this issue, and as the Commission itself has indicated more than once, this is not a position that can be upheld.

The Commission opines that 27 April 1992 must be considered the date of State succession in respect of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia because that was the date on which Montenegro and Serbia adopted the Constitution of the new entity and because the relevant international agencies then began to refer to "the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia", affirming that the process of dissolution of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia had been completed.

8. The Arbitration Commission is aware of the practical problems that might ensue from determining more than one date of State succession because of the long-drawn-out process whereby the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia was dissolved. One implication is that different dates would apply for the transfer of State property, archives and debts, and of other rights and interests, to the several successor States of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

9. The Commission would point out, however, that the principles and rules of international law in general relating to State succession are supplemental, and that States are at liberty to resolve the difficulties that might ensue from applying them by entering into agreements that would permit an equitable outcome.

10. The Arbitration Commission consequently takes the view:

- That the dates upon which the States stemming from the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia succeeded the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia are:

- . 8 October 1991 in the case of the Republic of Croatia and the Republic of Slovenia,
- . 17 November 1991 in the case of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia,
- . 6 March 1992 in the case of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and
- . 27 April 1992 in the case of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia-Montenegro).

- That, unless the States concerned agree otherwise, these are the dates upon which State property, assets and miscellaneous rights, archives, debts and various obligations of the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia pass to the successor States.

Paris, 16 July 1993

B. OPINION NO. 12

On 20 April 1993, the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia referred six questions to the Chairman of the Arbitration Commission, seeking the Commission's opinion.

Question No. 3 was:

"(a) What legal principles apply to the division of State property, archives and debts of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia in connection with the succession of States when one or more of the parties concerned refuse(s) to cooperate?

"(b) In particular, what should happen to property

- not located on the territory of any of the States concerned; or
- situated on the territory of the States taking part in the negotiations?"

Question No. 6 was:

"(a) On what conditions can States, within whose jurisdiction property formerly belonging to the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia is situated, block the free disposal of that property or take other protective measures?

"(b) On what conditions and under what circumstances would such States be required to take such steps?"

The Commission considers that these two questions form an entity and should be answered in one and the same opinion.

On 12 May 1993, the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference transmitted to the Chairman of the Commission a declaration by the Government of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia raising a number of objections to the reference to the Commission. The members of the Commission unanimously adopted a document reacting to the assertions made by the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia; this was addressed to the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference on 26 May 1993. None of the States parties to the proceedings has contested the Commission's right to answer questions referred to it.

The Commission has taken cognizance of the memorandum, observations and other materials communicated by the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Republic of Croatia, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the Republic of Slovenia, which have been passed on to all the successor States of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. The Federal Republic of Yugoslavia has submitted no memorandum or observations on the questions referred.

1. In its opinion No. 9, the Arbitration Commission recalled the few well-established principles of international law applicable to State succession.

The fundamental rule is that States must achieve an equitable result by negotiation and agreement. The principle is applicable to the distribution of the State property, archives and debts of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

2. If one or more of the parties concerned refused to cooperate, it would be in breach of that fundamental obligation and would be liable internationally, with all the legal consequences this entails, notably the possibility for States sustaining loss to take non-forcible countermeasures, in accordance with international law.

3. It follows from the principle formulated above that the other States concerned must consult with each other and achieve, by agreement between them, a comprehensive equitable result reserving the rights of the State or States refusing to cooperate.

Such an agreement is res inter alios acta in relation to third States, be they States refusing to cooperate or other States. In accordance with the established principle of international law enshrined in article 34 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties, whereby "a treaty does not create either obligations or rights for a third State without its consent", third States in whose territory property covered by State succession is situated are not required to take action in pursuance of such agreements.

However, such third States may, in the exercise of their sovereignty, give effect to them if they satisfy the conditions set out in paragraph 1 above.

4. Even in the absence of such agreements, third States may take such interim measures of protection as are needed to safeguard the interests of the successor States by virtue of the principles applicable to State succession.

5. Third States would be required so to do if an international agency with powers in the matter took decisions that were binding on States within whose jurisdiction property having belonged to the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia was situated.

6. The Arbitration Commission consequently takes the view that:

- Refusal by one or more successor States to cooperate in no way alters the principles applicable to State succession as set out in opinion No. 9;
- Other States concerned may conclude one or more agreements conforming to those principles in order to secure the equitable distribution of the State property, archives and debts of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia;
- Such agreements would not be binding on States which were not party to them, nor on other States in whose territory property having belonged to the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia was situated;
- However, this answer is without prejudice to the right of successor States sustaining loss by virtue of the refusal of one or more of the parties concerned to cooperate, to take countermeasures in accordance with international law, to the right of third States to take the necessary safeguard measures to protect the successor States and to such obligations as might be incumbent on third States to give effect to decisions taken by an international agency having powers in the matter.

C. OPINION NO. 13

On 20 April 1993, the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia referred six questions to the Chairman of the Arbitration Commission, seeking the Commission's opinion.

Question No. 4 was:

"Under the legal principles that apply, might any amounts owed by one or more parties in the form of war damages affect the distribution of State property, archives and debts in connection with the succession process?"

On 12 May 1993, the Co-Chairmen of the Steering Committee of the International Conference transmitted to the Chairman of the Commission a declaration by the Government of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia raising a number of objections to the reference to the Commission. The members of the Commission unanimously adopted a document reacting to the assertions made by the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia; this was addressed to the Co-Chairmen of the International Conference on 26 May 1993. None of the States parties to the proceedings has contested the Commission's right to answer questions referred to it.

The Commission has taken cognizance of the memorandum, observations and other materials communicated by the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Republic of Croatia, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the Republic of Slovenia, which have been passed on to all the successor States of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. The Federal Republic of Yugoslavia has submitted no memorandum or observations on the questions referred.

1. In opinion No. 9 the Arbitration Commission appreciates that there are few well-established principles of international law that apply to State succession. Application of these principles is largely to be determined case by case, depending on the circumstances proper to each form of succession, although the 1978 and 1983 Vienna Conventions do offer some guidance.

2. The Commission would point out in particular that articles 18, 31 and 41 of the Convention of 8 April 1983 are relevant where State succession occurs as a result of the dissolution of a pre-existing State. While equity has some part to play in the division of State property, archives and debts between successor States, these articles do not require that each category of assets or liabilities be divided in equitable proportions but only that the overall outcome be an equitable division.

3. However, this equitable outcome is to be obtained by reference to the law of State succession. The rules applicable to State succession, on the one hand, and the rules of State responsibility, on which the question of war damages depends, on the other, fall within two distinct areas of international law.

4. The equitable division of the assets and liabilities of the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia between the successor States must therefore be effected without the question of war damages being allowed to interfere in the matter of State succession, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary between some or all of the States concerned or of a decision imposed upon them by an international body.

5. The Arbitration Commission would, however, underline the fact that its reply to the question referred to it is in no way prejudicial to the respective responsibilities of the parties concerned in international law. The possibility cannot be excluded in particular of setting off assets and liabilities to be transferred under the rules of State succession on the one hand against war damages on the other.

6. Subject to the observations made above, the Arbitration Commission consequently takes the view that amounts that might be owing by one or more parties in respect of war damages can have no direct impact on the division of State property, archives or debts for purposes of State succession.
