GRANTS OF £185M UNDER SOCIAL FUND

Third allocation for 1982

The European Commission has announced a further allocation of £185m for training and retraining schemes in the United Kingdom under the European Social Fund. So far this year, Britain has been allocated about one third of the total grant finance from the Fund. In line with Community policy, aid has been concentrated particularly on training of young people, with £90.6m devoted to this sector. A further £62.5m is allocated to training operations in those regions with the most serious unemployment problems and £18.6m for a variety of training schemes for handicapped people.

Among numerous successful applications from British local authorities, Greater Manchester Council receives nearly £3m for remedial training for adults, including literacy skills for the unemployed or those threatened with redundancy; this scheme is designed to help 26 400 people.

Aid allocated to Britain under the Women's section of the Social Fund is comparatively small because other schemes apply both to men and women (40 per cent of those trained under the general schemes are women), but this latest batch includes grant aid for training young women in construction skills, as engineering technicians, in micro-electronics and in motor vehicle maintenance.

Three new pilot projects which have been agreed include the Stonebridge Bus Depot Training Programme in the London Borough of Brent (grant of £135 000), where a package of vocational training courses will be initiated and run by local youngsters in an area which has a 50 per cent unemployment rate among young black people.

How the Social Fund works

A training scheme must have financial support from a public authority, in order to be eligible for assistance from the Social Fund. For schemes run by public authorities themselves, the Commission will meet up to half the cost of the project, while for schemes run by private organisations the Commission may match public authority support. Grants are made under Articles 4,5 and 7 of the Social Fund.

Article 4

Under this Article, the Fund can assist with training or retraining of particular groups of workers: people leaving agriculture, leaving the textile industry, or acquiring new skills in that area; migrant workers moving between member states or from third countries; young people under 25 years of age looking for their first job; or women over the age of 25 who are unemployed or seeking a return to work after having a family.

Article 5

Under this Article, the Fund can help workers in regions of the Community where unemployment is particularly serious, such as Northern Ireland ('absolute priority region'). For the UK, priority is also given for training and retraining required as a result of technical progress; to help workers who are the victims of changes in particular industries which lead to altered labour needs; and to rehabilitate and train the disabled to compete on the en market.

Article 7

Under Article 7 of the Social Fund support is give to pilot or experimental projects which may lead to normal Social Fund training programmes.

In the UK, most applications for assistance from the Fund are made by the Manpower Services Commission, which has had support for the Youth Opportunities Programme, Training Opportunities Programme (TOPS) and a number of other schemes concerned with helping the unemployed and young people entering the job market, especially in poorer regions. Grants are also requested by other public bodies such as the Industrial Training Boards and local authorities. However, applications have increasingly come from private or repanies and untary bodies supporting local unemployment and training initiatives.

Details of individual grants in the latest allocation are listed below. These are for one year's duration.
